Downey steps up wooing of Tesla

BY ERIC PIERCE, CITY EDITOR

DOWNEY – With Tesla Motors expected to make a decision soon on a location for a new assembly and production plant and Downey a known finalist for the plant - city officials are leaving no stone unturned in their recruitment efforts.

The city paid $9,974 for a halfpage, full-color advertisement in Monday's Los Angeles Times. In the ad, which appeared on page B9 of the Business section, the entire Downey City Council is shown wearing T-shirts that say "Downey ♥ Tesla" while holding a banner that reads "Downey Welcomes Tesla Motors - Apollo to Tesla - the legacy continues ... "

The ad also includes an open letter to Tesla CEO Elon Musk. In it, the Council sells Downey as "a nimble, innovative, well run city" and invites Tesla "to be a part of the Downey legacy of innovation... a truly American experience."

Downey Regional files for bankruptcy protection

8301 E. Florence Ave., Suite 100, Downey, CA 90240

Bad HMO contracts and deficient collection practices have hurt the hospital.

By Eric Pierce. CITY EDITOR

DOWNEY – In the same week a new state-of-the-art medical center triumphantly opened its doors in Downey, another hospital sank deeper into insolvency.

Downey Regional Medical Center, dealing with a negative cash flow of about $1 million per month and stifling HMO contracts, has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, the hospital announced in a statement Monday.

The statement said the hospital's board of directors unanimously voted to file Chapter 11, but did not indicate when the vote took place.

Downey Regional officials said they expect to emerge from bankruptcy within one year.

Since former CEO Allen Korneff was ousted two years ago, Downey Regional administration has been "feverishly working to fix literally thousands of problems within its financial systems," including inadequate billing and collection services.

The hospital has drawn nearly $100 million in reserves over the last 10 years to stop a negative cash flow of $1 million per month, officials said. Reserves ran out in March 2008. Administration blamed "unfavorable terms" in capitation contracts with HMOs and medical groups. Capitation transfers the financial responsibility of HMO patients to the hospital and designated physician groups, in exchange for a monthly fee.

But Downey Regional was receiving only about $1 million in fees per month, while the hospital's actual costs reached nearly $3 million monthly, officials said.

Ken Strople

As of February, Downey Regional had paid more than $25 million to negotiate out of capitation contracts with Scan, Blue Shield, Health Net and PacifiCare, hospital officials said. The last remaining capitation contract was with Aetna and that contract was expected to be terminated with Monday's bankruptcy filing.

When Downey Regional emerges from reorganization, officials said it will operate under a self-sustaining fee-for-service business model.

"[Monday's] necessary actions will allow us to clean up the remainder of the financial morass that the current management team inherited that was over a decade in the making, and that we have been working to fix for two years," Downey Regional CEO Ken Strople said in a statement. "We are confident in our long-term prospects for success. I want to reassure our patients, our employees, the physicians, and the community that DRMC and its services will be fully open during this process, that excellent patient care will continue to be provided, that payrolls will be met, and that operations at the hospital will continue normally."

From fat boy to big boy

BY CHRISTIAN BROWN, STAFF WRITER

urrounded by eager community members, city officials unveiled the newest addition to Bob's Big Boy on Tuesday, the giant big boy that will rotate on top of the new restaurant.

"This is a great day," said Mayor Mario Guerra. "It will be an even greater day when it opens up."

As construction crews continue to rebuild what was once Johnie's Broiler, Guerra, along with City Council members Anne Bayer, Luis Marquez and David Gafin, helped Bob's Big Boy franchise owner Jim Lauder uncover the classic big boy mascot.

Christos Smyrniotis, owner of the property, believes the unveiling was a symbolic rebirth of the 1958 diner, which was partially demolished in 2007.

"As beautiful as it [Johnie's] was, I predict that phoenix is going to take place here," said Smyrniotis, relating the old diner to the mythical bird that dies in flames and is reborn from the ashes.

However, as a result of some modifications to the diner, it will not return exactly the same way it left. Lauder said the 75,000square-foot restaurant will have 185 seats, 75 more than Johnie's, as well as 185 new employees, some of which will serve as waiters, hostesses and carhop girls.

"We couldn't get everything exactly the way it was in '58," said Lauder, whose family will operate the diner. "But we've tried to preserve all the original themes and reuse a lot of the original poles, stone and wood planks."

Lauder also said the old fat boy character that once sat atop Johnie's Broiler will be placed in the back parking lot with a plaque that will describe the history of the mascot.

"We're really happy to be here - we're looking forward to serving them [customers]," said Lauder, who has a suggestion for new customers. "The original double-decker cheeseburger before McDonald's and the Big Mac, there was Big Boy's."

Bob's Big Boy restaurant is expected to open next month.

Kaiser hospital now open for business

■ First baby born barely 67 minutes after opening.

BY CHRISTIAN BROWN, STAFF WRITER

DOWNEY – Under patchy grey clouds and a warm morning sun, cheers rang out from Kaiser Permanente employees on Tuesday as the first patient being transported from the Bellflower Medical Center arrived to the new 700,000-squarefoot Downey Medical Center.

One by one, white ambulances pulled up to the front of the hospital, bringing more than 100 patients to the $390 million facility, which will largely replace Kaiser Permanente's Bellflower Medical Center.

Dr. Binesh Batra, medical director of the new center, walked around smiling, excited to see the six-story structure finally turning into a fullservice hospital.

"It's a big day – it's a great day not only for Kaiser Permanente but for the city of Downey," Batra said. "Our staff practiced for months for the 1.5 mile trip - the patients will be waking up in Bellflower and will be sleeping in Downey."

However, before the first patient arrived, Rudy and Rosemary Olivarez had already made a somewhat unexpected trip to the Downey Medical Center.

Scheduled to have a cesarean section on Wednesday morning, Rosemary, 37, suddenly went into labor on Tuesday morning.

"They told us last week if anything happened to come here," said Rudy, who drove the Los Angeles couple to the medical center.

At 8:07 a.m., Mia Luna Olivarez was born, the first baby born in the new hospital. Kaiser staff members presented the family with a gift basket wrapped in white lace with a green bow on top. Inside employees put a stuffed animal and some colorful blankets.

"This is our second child, we have a 2-year-old daughter," said Rudy, 39. "We are super excited."

For Batra, the new medical center represents the future of health care.

"We focus on the total health of our patients," Batra said. "We promote prevention and it gives us the best health care outcomes."

By monitoring hip fractures and osteoporosis in women, Batra said Kaiser Permanente saved patients more than $25 million.

The Kaiser Permanente Downey Medical Center will serve the Southeast Los Angeles County community and a portion of the 3.3 million Kaiser members living in Southern California.

Puppy saved from hot, locked car

BELLFLOWER - Animal control officers from the Southeast Area Animal Control Authority (SEAACA) last week rescued a 3month-old Chihuahua that was allegedly left inside a hot car in Bellflower.

A woman visiting the Kaiser Permanente hospital on Rosecrans Avenue noticed the puppy after parking next to a white Ford Focus at about 11 a.m., said Capt. Aaron Reyes, director of operations for SEAACA. When the woman returned to her car just before noon, she noticed the dog was still locked inside and was now panting heavily and pacing.

"She called SEAACA and the Bellflower dedicated officer was sent to the scene, arriving within five minutes," Reves said.

The animal control officer, Nadine Trujillo, registered the temperature inside the car at 123 degrees. By this time, the dog, named Bella, was "jumping from the back to the front seat in what appeared to be a panicked state, panting heavily."

"When the puppy climbed under the seat, all I could see was one of her hind legs," Trujillo said. "Her leg began to twitch and shake and I thought she was going into convulsions."

Another SEAACA officer arrived and, after confirming the car's doors were locked, broke the driver's side rear window and removed the dog, Reyes said.

Bella was transported to a veterinary clinic in Downey where she was treated and remains under care.

The owner of the vehicle, who was not identified, was issued a citation and charged with three misdemeanor counts of animal cruelty, Reyes said. If convicted, he could face a year in jail and fines up to $1,000 per count.

Roybal-Allard: healthcare reform 'imperative'

■ Congresswoman calls healthcare reform 'moral and fiscal imperative.'

LOS ANGELES – Rep. Lucille Roybal-Allard (D-34) updated 130 members of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce last month about current proposals before Congress to reform our nation's health insurance system.

"Reforming our nation's health care system is both a moral and a fiscal imperative," Roybal-Allard said. "To do this successfully, most people agree we need to provide universal access to quality care and slow the escalating costs of our national health care system. As difficult as the task is, we have no choice but to proceed if we are to become a healthier and more prosperous nation."

The congresswoman explained why health care reform is critical for families in her congressional Medicare Part D 'donut hole' and are forced to pay the entire costs of their medications. With an average annual household income of only $35,932, my constituents simply can no longer afford the status quo as health care costs rise beyond reach, and unemployment increasingly threatens any employerbased insurance that they might have."

The congresswoman also explained how small businesses in the Los Angeles region would benefit from the legislation being considered in the House, known as the America's Affordable Health Choices Act. The proposal would extend coverage to millions of uninsured Americans and bring "much needed stability and security" to those with health insurance already.

The bill is also designed to lower administrative costs for businesses that provide coverage by offering affordable large group rates while maintaining stable pricing from year to year. During her remarks, Roybal-Allard said: "Since all members of Congress recognize the critical role small business plays in our local and national economy, every effort is being made to make sure reforms help small businesses by bringing much needed competition and affordability to the insurance market.

"The bottom line, according to most experts, is that health insurance reform will greatly benefit small businesses. Relative to their larger counterparts, these firms continue to face severe disadvantages in the health insurance marketplace. Insurance costs for small businesses have increased 129 percent since the year 2000 and small business employees pay an average of 18 percent more in premiums with much higher deductibles than their counterparts working in larger businesses.

"As a result, the percentage of small businesses that offer health insurance to their employees has dropped almost 8 percent this decade and 60 percent of America's uninsured - or 28 million - are small business owners, workers and their families.

"While mid-sized and large businesses would be required to offer health coverage to their employees or pay an 8 percent payroll fee to help subsidize their coverage in the Exchange, 96 percent of small business owners will not be subject to the health care surcharge. Furthermore, employreform bill on small businesses and found that the proposed reforms will spur entrepreneurial activity, increase the pool of potential small business employees, and reduce absenteeism by promoting better health outcomes.

"Given the enormity of the task before us, it is a certainty that no one person will be completely happy with the final product. But I do believe that the America's Affordable Health Choices Act would be a strong first step to solving many of the problems that face our health care system today. We simply cannot afford to miss this opportunity because the need for reform is so urgent and the cost of doing nothing is so great.

"By working together, we can reform our broken health care system and give every American family the peace of mind that comes with affordable, quality health care."

Vascular screenings offered free

DOWNEY - The Vascular Access Center at 11411 Brookshire Ave., Suite 301, in Downey is offering residents free screenings for vascular diseases on Sept. 25.

Vascular diseases are the leading cause of death in the United States. Those at highest risk, according to the Vascular Access Center, are people over age 50 who have a family history of cardiovascular disease and/or have diabetes, high blood pressure and high cholesterol. Smokers and people who are overweight and/or lead an inactive lifestyle are also at greater risk.

Screenings will be offered from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Visitors will be screened for peripheral vascular disease, which is often an early warning sign of heart attack, stroke, aneurysms and other diseases.

To schedule an appointment, call (562) 862-4027.

Town hall meeting Oct. 15

DOWNEY - A town hall meeting with Mayor Mario Guerra will be held Oct. 15 from 6:30-8 p.m. at the Barbara J. Riley Community & Senior Center.

"These are exciting times for Downey and our citizens should know what we are doing and what our future holds," Guerra said.

The meeting will include time for the public to speak and share thoughts, ideas or concerns with the mayor.

For more information, call (562) 904-7274 or e-mail mguerra@downeyca.org.

Gardening workshop Wednesday

DOWNEY – A free gardening workshop for residents will be held Wednesday from 6-9 p.m. at the Barbara J. Riley Community & Senior Center.

"Gardening with Blue," sponsored by the city's Green Task Force, will cover several topics, including garden design for homeowners, benefits of using California-friendly plants, sprinkler system basics and introduction to irrigation scheduling.

A handbook will be available with information on 25 Californiafriendly plants. The handbook also includes information on native plant selection, care and maintenance.

The event is free but space is limited. RSVP by calling (323) 201-5580.

Jazz concert at First Presbyterian

DOWNEY – Guitarist Brandon Bernstein will perform with a jazz group Sept. 26 at First Presbyterian Church of Downey at 7:15 p.m.

The jazz group will consist of Kate Reid on vocals, Ryan McGillicuddy on bass and Tim Pleasant on drums. They will perform many of the old jazz standards with their own unique take. ### Test figures show mixed results

■ Alameda Elementary shows most improvement out of DUSD schools.

By Henry Veneracion, Staff Writer

DOWNEY — API (the state's Academic Performance Index) and AYP (the federal's Annual Yearly Progress) growth report figures that are said to measure the progress made by schools and school districts for the past school year, as well as a 'watch list' identifying which schools/school districts need to improve their AYP scores, were released Wednesday and the results for the Downey Unified School District were mixed.

First the good news. The district's overall API score of 760 exceeded last year's score by 16 points and thus, according to DUSD officials, "met the 2009 API criteria," in addition to meeting its graduation rate (some 92 percent vs. a target of 83.1 percent).

Further, whereas last year only five schools met their API growth target school-wide and for all subgroups, this year 12 schools met or exceeded their targets: Alameda, Gauldin, Old River, Price, Rio Hondo, Unsworth, Ward, Williams, Griffiths Middle, Sussman Middle, West Middle and Warren High. The growth rates ranged from 5 points for Imperial and Williams to a whopping 56 points for Alameda.

Where an 800 score indicates solid performance (800 is the state's performance goal), equivalent to saying that the school as a whole has achieved the desired criteria of proficiency to advanced levels of knowledge and skills the student should possess in their appropriate grade levels, the following five elementary schools had scores of at least 800: Alameda (821), Price (850), Unsworth (802), Ward (800) and Williams (801).

A notable increase of 21 API points has been ascribed to Columbus Continuation High School as it registered a score of 579 under the Alternative Schools Accountability Model (ASAM), enough to further encourage school officials' efforts to strengthen their program serving 'at-risk' students.

Now the bad news. The subgroup growth targets were not met at these six schools: Carpenter, Gallatin, Imperial, Lewis, Rio San Gabriel, East, and Downey High. Moreover, the API scores declined at Carpenter (-4), Gallatin (-1), Lewis (-5) and Rio San Gabriel (-6).

Most of the 'bad' news really is concentrated in the AYP standards, which factor in different criteria from those used in API, but which the school officials said is getting "more and more difficult to meet" as the bar is raised every year until by the school year 2013-14 "l00 percent of students (Gr. 2-8 and 10) falling under No Child Left Behind indicators [should] achieve proficiency in English-language arts and mathematics."

Officials said such standards are "practically impossible to meet" especially considering that the district has a lot of English learners and Special Education students in its midst (AYP brooks no argument on this: each one should achieve 100 percent proficiency by 2014 regardless.)

This is such a hot topic nowadays in the educational community that there are moves afoot to restructure NCLB. Contemplated reforms even extend to considering using students' test scores to evaluate teachers, which is at the core of the debate now raging as a way to get a share of the $4 billion federal 'Race to the Top' fund, as enunciated by President Obama.

In any case, 2009 AYP targets for schools was to attain 46.0 proficiency in English-language arts, and 47.5 percent in mathematics, for elementary schools, middle schools, and elementary school districts; 44.5 in ELA and 43.5 in mathematics for high schools; 45.0 in ELA and 45.5 in mathematics for unified school districts as a whole; and to meet the API requirement for AYP purposes, a school or LEA (local educational agency) must demonstrate a growth at least one point or a minimum API score at least 650. Because "as a district, we did not meet the AYP growth targets for English-language arts and mathematics for the second year," say school officials, "DUSD is in Year l" of the so-called 'watch list'; the four middle schools are now in Year 4. (The list applies only schools receiving Title I funds). There are of course rules by which a district or school can get out of the 'watch list', but it won't be easy.

Danish Parliament looks to Downey for help on anti-gang efforts

■ Facing increased gang activity, Danish officials look to Downey for help.

By Henry Veneracion, Staff Writer

DOWNEY — A delegation comprising 20 members of the legal affairs committee of the 179strong Parliament of Denmark paid a visit to Gangs Out of Downey (GOOD) Wednesday afternoon in what was the last leg of their 4-day tour in the Los Angeles area to gather ideas on local anti-gang practices. from the Middle East.

The group was met here by three Danish Embassy officials stationed in Washington, D. C., who then accompanied them on their tour.

Their itinerary included visits to and comprehensive briefings by the L. A. District Attorney's office, the Lakewood Sheriff's Station, Compton Task Force, the Hertzberg-Davis Forensic Center, the County Board of Supervisors, and Los Padrinos Juvenile Hall, as well as interfaces with gang trial judges and Homeboy Industries (where former gang members are gainfully employed).

After their delayed arrival at nity in combating gang encroachment in Downey.

Jagielski said that as a result of the combined commitment of the community's segments and the alertness of its police department and auxiliaries ("and luck"), Downey has over the last four years experienced declining trends in the incidence of serious crimes, i.e., homicides, forcible rape, robbery, etc. It thus focuses more, he said, on intervention in juvenile "at-risk" situations and, thus ultimately, on prevention of potentially serious gang issues/problems.

The Danish delegation heard Jagielski expound on GOOD's programs that included the important grams has contributed in no small measure, he said, to declining suspension and expulsion rates in the district as well.

Weaving their comments through Jagielski's presentation, Council member and Downey Adult School principal Roger Brossmer spoke on the graffiti tracking program, Downey Police Lt. Carl Charles on the presence of officers on campus and monthly school safety meetings with viceprincipals and officers, facilitators Julian Mendoza and (DUSD teacher Anthony Zegarra) on Amer-I-Can, and City Manager's office's Juddy Ceniceros on flourishing Downey's Neighborhood Watch program.

At age 94, Dr. Kelley's sense of humor still intact

Dr. Walter Kelley, who says he once delivered 100 babies in one day, is happily enjoying a welldeserved retirement.

BY HENRY VENERACION, STAFF WRITER

hatever his secret for longevity, the fact is that Dr. Walter Kelley is 94, still alert, and, in his own words, still "fine for the activities of modern life."

He's had to sell his trusty Lincoln Continental recently because the DMV wouldn't permit him to drive anymore, but getting around and about has not been a problem: his children look in and "get me what I want" and otherwise help him with transportation. Besides, there's always Downey's Dial-a-Ride.

His having to use a walker is another one of those slight inconveniences, but his mind is as keen as ever, and to him this is far more important: "I'm lucky. My brain is [still] working fine."

The retired general practitioner is looking forward to Sunday afternoon, Sept. 20, as he again hosts the Downey Symphony's annual garden party at his spacious home. Numerous friends and supporters of the Symphony have been invited to the summer event which last year drew an estimated 75 guests.

It is anticipated that this year's garden party fundraiser, whose proceeds are earmarked for the Symphony's muchappreciated Music in the School's program, will draw an even greater attendance, to include Dr. Kelley's long-lost friends and acquaintances. The Music in the Schools program benefits the thousands of public and private elementary school kids in Downey. In addition to the "great food, dessert, champagne," and more, there will be "great music," according to Downey Symphony stalwart and publicist Joyce Sherwin.

Harold Tseklenis, a board member since the '60s, says "many well-known performers who have over the years appeared as soloists with the Downey Symphony have been invited, including last fall's piano soloist, Pauline Yang."

The other major Symphony fundraiser is held in the fall. The total funds target, says Tseklenis, is "in the order of $150,000," with the Symphony's three annual concerts as well as its Concerts-in-the-Park performance(s) accounting for the larger portion of the annual budget. He adds: "Within the last few years, it's been increasingly difficult to raise the funds for the full program of the Symphony." Dr. Kelley, who also gained a reputation for delivering babies ("One time I delivered 100 babies in one day," he says), was born in the rural town of Fordville, North Dakota (pop. 400), graduating from Fordville High School in 1932. It was the height of the Depression, he says, and after a five-year hiatus, during which he worked for the Civilian Conservation Corps, he was able to matriculate at the University of North Dakota, where he earned both a BA in pre-med and a BS in medicine. The year: 1942. A recommendation from his mentor landed him in New York City, where he enrolled at New York Medical College. Because of WWII, the medical program at the college was accelerated to two years, and, taking advantage of a U.S. Army program which paid his tuition for a year and a half, he got his medical degree in 1944.

of duty thus: "The Army sent us nine men and two officers to the very south South Pacific, to New Caledonia, Fiji, the British and American Samoa, Ruratanga, and Tongariva, which was a coral atoll. What did we do? We essentially went sight-seeing and fishing."

Moving to Southern California in 1948, Dr. Kelley worked for Dr. Hickey in South Gate for a while, then opened his own clinic. Afterwards he was to work for 39 years at St. Francis Hospital, while also getting actively affiliated with Downey Community Hospital (now DRMC) the last five years of his active medical practice. They had moved to Downey in the meantime in 1951.

After he retired, and some two or three years before Arlyss died nine years ago, the couple did a little traveling, including trips to Germany, Italy, Norway, Australia, New Zealand and Alaska.

Arlyss was very active in the community, and served on the Symphony board for years.

Not exactly an athlete in his youth, Dr. Kelley achieved a golf handicap of 15, playing at Candlewood Country Club. He swore he'd quit golf if his game were to deteriorate to a 30handicap, which of course happened. Accepting the inevitable, he promptly mothballed his golf set.

Proverbs

Never judge a man by his garment, for like an unread novel you know not the inside or the ending, for his garment as well as the title may be misleading.

The Bible is liken to a pinata, when struck hard with perusing it will burst forth abundantly with Heaven's sweetness.

Don't let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, unless it's willing to help.

Be sure you chew your words well before you spew them out, taking care to refine and saturate them well with love.

Do not pick the scabs from your sores as they are God's medicated band aids.

Receiving and giving go hand in hand, for you take out of yours to put into others.

Put your priorities in order by helping others before thinking of self, the means will justify itself, with never ending blessing from God.

I will consider evolution when I see an ape walking out of a jungle with the Bible in hand and reading aloud. -Rose Sciascia Neal, Downey hen's the last time you said something or did something so boneheaded you instantly regretted it? Everyone has those moments.

Let it go

By Eric Pierce

My moment came a few years ago after I was promoted to editor of this newspaper. In an effort to show my sense of humor, I wrote a poem about becoming a pimp. Yes, a pimp.

Yeah, I don't know what I was thinking either.

It was an embarrassing moment, but it happens to everyone. The important thing is to laugh at yourself and move on.

But sometimes that's hard to do, especially if you're in the public spotlight.

When Rep. Joe Wilson (R-South Carolina), in an uncontrolled fit of passion, shouted out "You lie!" during a recent speech by President Barack Obama, he broke congressional and civil decorum.

Wilson did the right thing and issued an almost immediate apology to the President. Wilson called his outburst a "lack of civility," "inappriopriate" and "regrettable."

At that moment, the issue should have been dropped. Instead, the House found it appropriate to dwell on the issue and approve a "resolution of disapproval," as if Congress doesn't have more important matters on its plate.

Kanye West interrupts an acceptance speech by Taylor Swift at the MTV Video Music Awards and the whole world is atwitter. No matter that West apologized twice, now Donald Trump (how'd he get involved?) is calling for a boycott of West's music. A Florida music station, presumbably starved for attention, happily obliged and pulled all Kanye West recordings from its playlist.

Serena Williams went off the deep end earlier this week, telling a referee she would take the tennis ball and shove it down the ref's throat. It was a bad moment for the usually calm Serena, and she was punished accordingly. Her outburst cost her a tournament title and more than $10,000 in fines, not to mention a bruised reputation.

Serena took to the Internet to issue a swift apology, but people still won't let it go. Kurt Street of the Los Angeles Times said Serena should be suspended for the rest of the year. (Keep dreaming.)

It has been a bad week for outbursts. But when someone screws up and apologizes, we should do our best to accept that apology and move on with our lives.

The book is back

By Jan Palen, Senior Librarian

he Downey City Library's upcoming "One Book, One Community" program, title to be announced on Tuesday, will have many opportunities to get involved. By participating in a community reading project, you have the chance to talk with your neighbors, start your own book discussion group, and even re-discover the art of great storytelling.

If you have noticed the lack of a good story line, character development or depth in most of today's cultural fare, you are not alone. Of course there are quality television programs, films, plays, articles and websites—but they are the exception. You turn on the TV but find reality shows, celebrity gossip, talent competitions, infomercials and chatter panels with more insults than insight. You go to the movies and try to ignore the assault on your senses from upcoming attractions. You go to the theatre but the selections are mostly revivals and musical reviews. You go on the Internet and sort through opinions, ads and infobites. You open a book, however—and that's another story. A great book demands your time and attention, but pays back in abundance. A fine novel sparks your imagination, introduces memorable characters and different cultures, and uses language to change your perspective on the world.

Letter to the Editor:

Downey Regional's new beginning

Dear Editor:

I have always enjoyed reading The Downey Patriot and quite a few friends and patients called me this past week to congratulate me on being the Downey Regional Medical Center (DRMC) Charter Ball honoree based on an article they read in the Patriot.

The big news this week has been DRMC filing for Chapter 11 reorganization and I felt compelled to write the Patriot on this rather profound development at our local hospital.

I have been the Medical Director at DRMC for over 10 years and have practiced in the city of Downey for almost 20 years. I fell in love with DRMC in the mid 1980's (it was named the Downey Community Hospital at that time) when I was moonlighting for the late Gallatin Medical Clinic while completing my postgraduate training with UCLA. I was struck by how the physicians, nurses and employees took pride in their work and how the culture was like one big family. This was not unlike how the hospitals and businesses were in my home state of Iowa but I did not expect to find a place like this in Southern California.

Although we have gone through many changes at DRMC, it is still a place where our people take ownership and personal responsibility in providing the best and safest patient care. While physician peer review is a joke at most other hospitals, the physicians at DRMC take peer review seriously. Patient Safety is receiving a lot of press these days; we have tirelessly addressed this issue at DRMC before it was a popular catch phrase.

The Chapter 11 filing does not signify the end of our great hospital but what I believe is a new beginning. Our Hospital Board of Directors made a very bold and painful decision when they replaced our previous president and CEO (who had been in the position for over 30 years) with Mr. Ken Strople 27 months ago. We had been losing $2 million per month for more than seven years and went through about $150 million in capital and were told that this was simply the cost of doing business. Ken did not buy this and with the help of our Executive Vice President and COO, Rob Fuller, systematically broke down all the aspects of DRMC's business practices and within one year stopped the bleeding of cash. Richard Yardley was brought in as CFO and he assisted in further identifying the literally thousands of broken or inefficient business practices.

DRMC has now had 16 consecutive months without a financial loss which is better than almost any other hospital in our area. However, DRMC was still unfortunately shackled by the enormous financial burdens of bad contracts between the hospital and various other entities which were put in place before Ken Strople took over the reins. In the end, in spite of running the rare profitable Southern California hospital, DRMC simply did not have the cash reserves to honor all of the historical obligations and had no other choice but file the Chapter 11. This allows the hospital to pay its debts of the past in a rational way over time.

I have full confidence that our executive team at DRMC will keep our beloved hospital in business while providing the highest quality health care in our area. The Chapter 11 filing does not mark the end of DRMC, it signifies a new beginning.

— Bill H. Kim, MD, FACG,

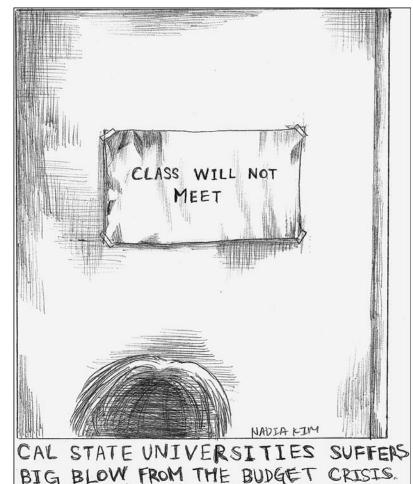

Medical Director, Downey Regional Medical Center

Completing the job

Dear Editor:

Last week, construction began again on the 3-story "hotel" on the northeast corner of Gallatin Road and Downey Avenue, after about a twoyear hiatus.

The skeleton has been sitting there, deteriorating, exposed to the elements. It stands as a reminder of our loose permit requirements. It seems like it is allowed to start a project but not required to finish it. But, for whatever reason, work has begun again.

Government healthcare

Dear Editor:

My doctor said no one seems to be concerned with their anticipated problems.

In 2006, Massachusetts gave thousands of uninsured people health insurance and they now have a shortage of doctors, vastly overcrowded emergency rooms, and long waiting periods for an operation, some as long as a year.

Medicare will cut payments to doctors by 20 percent despite everincreasing malpractice insurance and a new tax expected on their services. They will have to continue volunteering services without pay to those without insurance, and many patients needing hip replacement and other serious operations will have to travel hundreds of miles to specialists.

With reduced earnings and a vast increase in patients, many doctors are expected to file bankruptcy or retire shortly after President Obama's government insurance is implemented, and fewer students will be taking medical training that will result in serious shortages.

Fixing anything that isn't broken can have dire consequences. — James Hawkins,

Downey

Brown Act questions

Dear Editor:

I commend the enthusiasm and commitment on the part of our City Council in courting CEO Elon Musk of Tesla Motors to build their new electric-car plant in Downey.

However, after reading an article in the Sept. 16 edition of the Press-Telegram about Downey's efforts to convince Musk to build the plant here, I am concerned Council may be a little overzealous.

According to the story by PT staff writer John Canalis, "All five members (emphasis added) of the Downey City Council took a bus to Hawthorne on Tuesday in their quest to persuade Tesla Motors to build an Distributed by CIPS Marketing Group, Inc., Los Angeles, CA. I do not know what the life span of a building permit is, if any. Doesn't some sort of activity or improvement have to be shown within a certain amount of time or the permit becomes void? And after that amount of time, is not the strength of the timber compromised? The darkly stained color of the old wood seems to say so. The contrast between the old and new lumber is striking.

Now that the new top floor is taking shape, its low roof line resembles half attic, half army barracks. I can only wonder what side of the building the fire escapes will be located.

I only hope that in the future, fingers won't be pointed to each other if the structure collapses because the building materials were unsound. It might be a good time to revisit the time requirements on city building permits, if any.

Media bias

Dear Editor:

This is in response to Jeffrey East's letter regarding general circulation. (Letters to the Editor, 9/11/09)

I also add my congratulations to The Downey Patriot on the change in status to a general circulation newspaper. But I hope that you'll follow a path that is neither slanted to the right nor the left. Newspapers in this country have not chosen to alienate their readers by slanting too far to the left; this has happened because most people choose to get their news from almost around the clock cable news channels and the Internet.

Everyone always talks about the "liberal media"; I quite frankly am having a hard time finding it, yet I can turn on a cables news channel and practically trip over media that is slanted to the right. It's a joke to call this honest and ethical reporting. Calling Fox News Channel "fair and balanced" is a complete oxymoron.

As to Mr. East's statement on honesty and ethics and his thinly veiled slap at Ted Kennedy; I have to say to you, what happened was a tragedy and it was 40 years ago. Can he ever be forgiven; obviously not in your eyes.

Downey

Book signing at Bob's Big Boy

DOWNEY – Authors John Eng and Adriene Biondo will sign copies of their latest book, "Southern California Eats," Sept. 26 at the new Bob's Big Boy in Downey from 2-3 p.m.

"Southern California Eats" is described as part homage, part guidebook to some of the areas most unique eating establishments, including Hollywood's Formosa Café, the LAX Theme Building, and ultra-modern Googie coffee shops.

The book-signing will also include a car show.

electric-car plant where NASA once assembled space capsules."

While I'm sure each council member was separated by several rows of seats on that bus, to discourage speaking to one another about city business, I hope our City Attorney Mr. Lee was driving that bus, to admonish Council about avoiding even the appearance of a violation of the Brown Act.

They may not have been sitting behind the dais in Council Chambers, but having all five council members on that bus at the same time for a road trip across town to Hawthorne, sure looks like a council meeting to me.

Coincidentally, in the same paper there is also a story about the reconstructed Johnie's Broiler on Firestone Boulevard in Downey reopening soon as a Bob's Big Boy, with the unveiling of the restaurant's iconic "Big Boy" character on the marquis. According to the article, the City Council and city management received a tour of the restaurant.

The last paragraph of the story quotes Mayor Mario Guerra in staking out a good location to dine, "This is going to be the City Council booth, right here."

I hope that booth is big enough to seat all five members of the Council, and that Lee is waiting on the table with good counsel about the Brown Act.

-Brian Heyman,

Downey

Editor's note: City administration, who were copied on the above letter, issued the following response:

The Brown Act is very clear regarding what staff arranged on Tuesday, Sept. 15, 2009. For your readers' reference, the Brown Act requirements can be found in the California Government Code. Section 54952.2.C.5 of the Government Code states that the Brown Act requirements are not imposed for:

"The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at a purely social or ceremonial occasion, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body of the local agency."

The unveiling of the Bob's statue and the delivery of a basket to the Tesla Motors CEO were ceremonial occasions. No city business was discussed during the travel to and from the ceremonies. Members of the press from The Downey Patriot and Long Beach Press-Telegram were present during the travel and can confirm this fact.

Readers with any questions should call Scott Pomrehn, assistant deputy city manager, at (562) 904-7286.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by writing to The Downey Patriot, 8301 E. Florence Ave., Suite 100, Downey, CA 90240 or by e-mail to downeypatriot@yahoo.com. Letters may be edited for style and/or content. Letters must include a full name and address for verification.

Parking Lot Imposes Safety Hazards, Leads to New Regulations

By Deborah Won

Precautionary measures have been taken to reduce the risks of high traffic around the Warren High School parking lot requiring parents to drop off their students by 7:30 a.m., and students driving vehicles must be within the parking structure by 7:45 a.m.

In addition, straggling students who enter the parking lot in vehicles will be required to identify themselves with their school identification card. Particularly this year, the chaos of students and vehicles weaving through the entrances and parking structure caused uneasiness amongst many, including the administrators.

"We want to avoid and prevent any accidents," said Vice Principal Gilberto Rodriguez when asked why these regulations were being enforced. Rodriguez, head of the school safety at Warren, called these new regulations as procedural, and that they are being enacted with the best interests of the students' safety in mind.

"Too many parents are dropping off their students close to 7:40 [a.m.], and not giving them enough time to make it to class," said Rodriguez.

Truly, with approximately 4,000 students needing to arrive at school simultaneously, the traffic certainly does get hectic, and therefore dangerous. The rushing vehicles amidst the crowds of pedestrian students impose a safety hazard, as numerous accidents and incidents could potentially occur in such a congested area.

Therefore, by regulating the time that vehicles can enter through the gates, "congestion will be reduced in the parking lot," said Rodriguez. "And students can travel faster to their classes without worrying about moving vehicles."

In order to enforce these rules, both gates on Paramount Blvd. and DePalma Avenue will be closed after 7:30 a.m. However, the two pedestrian gates on both these streets will remain open for students. The regulations only apply to vehicles.

Nevertheless, talk amongst the student population suggests that many believe these rules will not be carried out, or that if they are in the beginning of the school year, they will eventually cease to be enforced. Several students and parents disagreed about these regulations, and had negative comments on the subject.

"I don't think it's a good idea because I think more kids will be tardy," said senior Natalie Bedran. "If a student happens to miss the gate, then they'd get into school even later than they normally would since the gates are closed off."

Other students made comments such as Bedran's, and seemed upset about the new policy. In addition, several parents have also called the school office with complaints on the regulations.

Above all, Rodriguez firmly believes that these regulations need to be enacted for the students' safety, and asks for parent and student compliance.

The Downey Legend

By Jennifer Cho

It's going to be a legendary year for Downey High because for the first time ever, the school will have a multimedia-based student-run online newspaper called The Downey Legend.

The Downey Legend is still in its developing stages, as Editor-in-Chief and Downey senior Crystal Fresquez is assembling a staff with the help of advisor Michelle Napoli. Fresquez says she formulated the idea of an online newspaper while at a five-day summer journalism camp at Cal State Long Beach this past August. Since Downey currently does not have a newspaper, Fresquez says she felt that the school was in great need of one. "Although I don't have experience, all I have is a vision," she said. "With this online newspaper, I hope that it will be able to highlight the achievements of Downey High students, which often go unrecognized." According to Fresquez, The Downey Legend will start off by focusing on school sports and eventually branch off to promote school events and student achievement. Because The Legend will be online, she says this will allow visitors to the site to interact through polls and videos. With multimedia journalism making headway through social networking sites such as Twitter and Facebook, she hopes to incorporate these into the online newspaper as well. Fresquez says she is willing to learn from her peers and advisor in order to make The Downey Legend a success. "I don't know everything and I'm still new to journalism, but I'm willing to learn from other students," Fresquez said. This brand-new publication is a class offered on campus where students will learn to write stories, shoot photos and videos, and upload content online. Since this multimedia publication is unprecedented, Napoli says she is looking forward to what the students can accomplish in the course of the school year. "Because there is no already established expectation, as this has never been done before at Downey, it allows room for creativity," Napoli said. Students at Downey are anticipating the launch of The Downey Legend, as it will be a source of news and information the school has never seen before. Students have a positive view of the online publication, since they will be able to read about school events and announcements at their own leisure "I would definitely read the online newspaper," said Megan Newbold, a junior at Downey. "I can't hear the morning announcements, so I can catch up on what's going on at school online at anytime." "I think an online paper would be great," said Downey junior ZacWickham. "It'll allow students to find out what's going on in a school wide basis."

Junior College or a Four-Year University: Which is the Better Route?

By Joanna Quintana

The decision between transferring from a Junior College and landing straight into a university has remained a puzzle for students however, the faculty and graduates of Downey High express their opinion on which route is best.

Five out of the six Downey administrators completed their first two years at a community college, followed with a transfer to a university. Tom Houts, principal of Downey High School, is one of the administrators who took the Junior College route, not having any regrets for the choice he made, but also recognizing that each student differs in their situation and career plan.

"If you want to be a teacher, you don't go to Harvard or USC and pay $200,000," he said. "You go to Cal State Long Beach, Cal State Fullerton, and pay $20,000. It really depends on what you want to do. Four-years are a lot of money and I just hate to see people go into a four-year, spending a lot of their parents' money when they don't know exactly what they want to do."

What perhaps makes the Junior Colleges so attractive is not only the amount of money a student saves on an education equal to that of the first two years at a university, but also on the smoothing of transition from teenager to adult. A student may bide their time transitioning into a mature adult while saving money and having no disadvantage through their curriculum.

"The two years you do at a community college are just as challenging if you did them at Cerritos or if you did them at UCLA; otherwise UCLA wouldn't take them," said Downey High counselor, Linda Riggs, who also received her general education at a Junior College.

Though the general education might not differ between a transfer student and a student who ventured straight into a university, the difference between the two types of institutions, even in their first two years, is imminent.

going to fit in, where you're going to meet people of similar ideas as you, and I think that intellectual curiosity is going to be more met on a more competitive campus," said Bernie Glasser, Downey High teacher and UCLA graduate. "So when you're surrounded by a bunch of kids who are very bright and driven, I think the chances for you to be driven and challenged are greater, and I think there are less of those at a JC than at a UCLA or Berkeley. Now, there are many people at a JC who are very serious and want to go on and do great things. I just don't think there are just as many percentage-wise. It is very dependent on you as an individual."

Not only may the environments between the two institutions differ, but contrary to belief, transferring might very well bring more stress on a student. Rather than being the easy road taken, there are certain dates to be met, specific documents to be completed and delivered, and a definite amount of credentials to be met before a student can be allowed to transfer.

"At a university, you can just stay there for four years and you don't have to worry about transferring and everything; so for right now, since I am at Cerritos, I have to worry about that and about getting all my credits and seeing what is transferable to a university," said Myra Salina, 2009 graduate of Downey High and current freshmen at Cerritos College. "I regret not going straight into a four-year. I think anybody can find a way by getting a loan or scholarship."

The transfer system might be preferred or seen as the simpler route by those in certain situations; however, both institutions contain their own benefits, as well as disadvantages. It can be discerned that the route a student partakes in their education can only be chosen by that particular student to best match their unique situation.

"Pride and Prejudice and Zombies" Book Review: A Literary Classic...With a Twist

By Gabriela Coya

Since its publication this past April, "Pride and Prejudice and Zombies" has gotten readers-including Jane Austen fans-talking. The novel by Seth Grahame-Smith, an altered zombie version of the famous Jane Austen novel "Pride and Prejudice," has risen to No. 3 on the New York Times bestseller list and already has a movie in the works.

The novel includes all the same characters and inherent plot-line, with a twist. A plague troubles the English countryside during the 19th-century causing dead people to become zombies and infect those living. The Bennet family protects themselves from the "undead" by highly training all five daughters in martial arts and weaponry, and Mrs. Bennet continues to be concerned with marrying them off.

Elizabeth Bennet-also the female protagonist in the original novelmasters the art of zombie combat and remains strong-willed while the famous Mr. Darcy continues to appear completely arrogant and proud and also happens to be well-trained at zombie killing. They have bad first impressions of each other, but eventually discover that there is more to one another than meets the eye and that they have a lot in common.

Austen fans may be hesitant to pick up the book believing it has desecrated a masterpiece. While certain parts of the novel have changed to adapt to the zombie plot-line, Jane Austen's voice and style of diction remain. After all, both Jane Austen and Seth Grahame-Smith are listed as authors on the cover. The parts that Austen intended to be comical continue to be comical, and the parts Austen intended to be tragic continue to be tragic.

The novel may even attract those who have never read an Austen novel. By itself, the adapted novel stands as an interesting piece of zombie fiction with two compelling protagonists who fall in love and are determined on vanquishing every "undead" person in their paths. Perhaps by reading this novel, readers may be interested in knowing what inspired the novel and pick up an original Jane Austen book.

With the sudden popularity of "Pride and Prejudice and Zombies," the same author and company are also publishing "Sense and Sensibility and Sea Monsters" Sept. 15.

Who would have thought that supernatural creatures and Jane Austen would make such a compatible team?

Spare 50 bucks for a fight?

an't believe I'm saying this, but thank heaven for Floyd Mayweather Jr.

Make no mistake, I can't stand the guy. He's cocky, arrogant, selfcentered and egotistical. He hasn't beaten anyone worth mentioning since Oscar De La Hoya in 2007, and these days, that's not saying much.

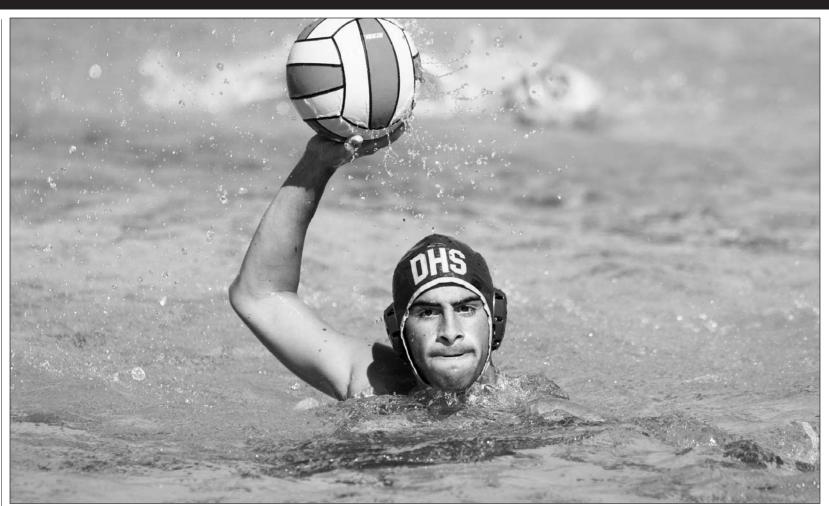

Still, as tough as it is to admit, boxing needs Floyd Mayweather Jr. And the worst part is, Mayweather knows it.

He's edgy, controversial and, most importantly, a box office magnet. People shell out big money to watch Mayweather fight. And despite his knack for controvery – or perhaps because of it – his reputation as pay-per-view gold grows incrementally larger with each mega-fight. (His self-given nickname isn't "Money" for nothing.)

If boxing is not currently on life support, it's in full cardiac arrest and in immediate need of rescusication. Much of the problem is that boxing is not as accessible to the average fan as it used to be.

These days, if you want to catch a Saturday night boxing match, you need to tune in to HBO or Showtime. That seems alright right now, but what happens three months from now when my DirecTV free trial runs out? The question is not rhetorical.

The situation is not dissimilar to the NHL, which rejected a revenue-

Downey rallied to score six goals in the third and fourt periods, but lost 16-7 to La Habra on Tuesday.

Vikings' offense stagnant in loss

■ Boys water polo struggles to score in 16-7 loss to La Habra.

By Joseph Apodaca, Sports Intern

DOWNEY – The opening match didn't go as planned for Downey boys water polo, losing 16-7 against La Habra on Tuesday.

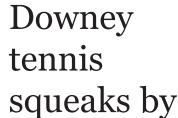

The Vikings took to the pool for four periods, with sprinter Derek Klotzer winning the sprint for three periods. Serro Park remained in set for the duration of the game, while Derek Dodson, Joshua Kim, Andrea Caero, and Juan Rivas assisted. New goalie Matthew Sims blocked several goal attempts throughout the game, but was not enough for the La Habra offensive line.

After gaining possession of the ball, it was passed to Park in set, who passed it to Klotzer, then to Caero who had access to move the ball closer to the goal. A pass to Dodson was made, where he attempted to score on the La Habra goalie. His shot was blocked and the Highlanders gained possession, resulting in their first goal of the game. Following the goal, Sims fouled a La Habra player and was ejected from the game for 30 seconds, resulting in the goal being empty and leaving it accessible for La Habra to score again despite Downey's attempts at defending it.

Following a tough first half, the Vikings attempted to get back in the lead, with six of their seven goals being scored in the third and fourth periods. Referees ejected Matthew Sims from the goal a second time, after fouling a La Habra player while trying to gain possession of a ball that came close to the goal. Dodson was able to score three of his five goals during the third period, which also saw three goals by La Habra. During the fourth period, Downey lost the sprint to La Habra, who took control of the game first. The Highlanders scored two goals at the top of the period while Kim from the Downey squad was ejected. La Habra went onto to score four more goals and Downey one more.

Made up of mostly new members, the Downey water polo team is aware they have much to improve on as the season progresses. Practices, tournaments, and non-league matches such as their season opener are cited as great warm-up rounds until they begin league games.

Mayfair

BY ALYSSA WYNNE, Sports Intern

DOWNEY – After an incredibly suspenseful game, Downey High girls tennis won by a slim margin of 78-75 in games against the Mayfair Monsoons.

Tuesday was certainly an exciting day for the Vikings, and a suspenseful one as well.

"We won," said varsity head coach Denise Diego. "It was a very close games. 9-9 set score but we won in games."

She, like the majority of her team, was very excited and was unable to control her happiness.

"It was a very close match," said Diego. "It could have gone to either team."

Current No. 1 varsity singles player, Sandra Lee, won all of her matches including a tiebreaker with an overall total of 18 points out of 19. Irene Saavedra earned a total of eight points for her team.

Former No. 1 player Christina Arsenescu was very disappointed with her sets.

"I lost like 2 sets," said Arsenescu. "I'm so mad."

Arsenescu has put a lot of pressure on herself for losing her top position in her event. Though she greatly contributed to her team's score with 11 points, she is nonetheless disappointed in herself for not performing better.

No. 1 varsity doubles team Janette Rico and Katie Medina won all of their three matches with a point contribution of 20 due to two tiebreakers. Rosanna Calderon and her partner Claudia Guzman were unable to win any of their matches against the Monsoons; but the combined strength of Caroline Tran and Christine Tran, along with subs Jennifer Cho and Jennifer Kheang acquired a total point count of 14.

sharing agreement with ESPN for a deal with Versus, which is allegedly a television station. How did that work out for the NHL? The 2007 Stanley Cup Finals were the lowest-rated in its history.

Nielsen ratings are not necessary to know the lack of television exposure is choking the sport of boxing. Any casual boxing fan now needs premium TV to stay connected and, heaven forbid a fight has any potential to be good, expect to shell out $49.99 for a pay-per-view.

When I was a kid, pay-per-view was strictly reserved for WrestleMania, and that was only because the WWF (as it was known then) had weekly shows on regular free TV that fed us our Hulkamania fix. When WrestleMania or SummerSlam or the Royal Rumble rolled around, how could we not order it?

Floyd Mayweather Jr. gets it. Just a few weeks ago even, he was on the Monday Night Raw wrestling show promoting tomorrow night's bout with Juan Manuel Marquez.

I don't like Mayweater – I predict he'll win by unanimious decision, but here's hoping he gets knocked out – but he gets it. If only the boxing powers that be got it too.

DOWNEY – The Downey Pop Warner Razorback tackle football program opened the 2009 season last Saturday at Allen Layne Stadium, on the campus of Downey High School, with resounding wins over teams from Lawndale, Lynwood and Buena Park.

Each of the Razorback tackle teams displayed potent offenses and stingy defenses in their quest for playoff spots in the Pacific Coast Conference and AYF National Championships.

Downey Flag Red (5-6-7 year olds) and the Midget Razorbacks (11-12-13 and 14) unfortunately had bye's on Week One of the eight- week regular PCC schedule and will open their season this Saturday.

Flag Grey's Kevin Brown rushed for 91 yards and had one touchdown of 45 yards to lead the Hogs against Buena Park. Xavier Nida and A.J. Vilarreal were also valuable in moving the ball against BP Green. Flag White outclassed Lawndale Red 35-7, and Flag Blue shut out Lawndale White 12-0.

The MityMite Razorbacks (7-8-9 year olds) thoroughly dominated Lawndale's Cardinal by an official score of 30-0.

Junior PeeWee Razorbacks (8-9-10 year olds) destroyed Lawndale, erupting with a 8 touchdown offensive display while shutting out the Cardinal 56-0.

PeeWee Razorbacks (9-10-11)

outclassed the Lynwood Knights 33-12 in the 2PM game.

In the first quarter, the Junior Midget Hogs (10-11-12 year olds) unleashed a talented newcomer, Jelani Dozier-Jones, for a quick score. After Justin Huff's long gainer in the next possession, quarterback Jacob Cook tossed a 22 yard touchdown pass to Dozier-Jones to made the score 12-0.

Downey's defense was unable to contain the Lawndale shotgun offense in the next series but after the kickoff, the Hog's moved the ball steadily down the field. Downey's Moses Alaniz blasted into the end zone for a touchdown from the 5 yard line and, Austin Espinosa made the first of his three two-point kick conversions to make the score 21-6.

After a successful on-side kick, Downey's Cook took a handoff from Rafael Rodriguez for a touchdown and a 29-6 lead. Once again, the Hogs lost containment on the very quick shotgun quarterback who scampered into the end zone making the score 29-12.

Justin Huff, with the assistance of some great blocking and fine faking, dashed for 82 yards and his second score. Another Razorback newcomer, Nicholas Luna, made his presence felt with a couple runs, the second of which was his first score of his tackle football career. Espinosa's two-point conversion made the score 43-12.

At the end of the game, the Hog reserves, lovingly called Bacon, were driving towards the end zone when time ran out.

All five tackle teams and Flag Blue will entertain the Gardena Mohicans at Warren High School tomorrow. The Flag game begins at 8 a.m. and the tackle games follow every two hours.

After such a close game, it is no wonder why the girl's were anxious for their match against Millikan yesterday. Scores were not available at press time.

Warren tenacious in loss

BY ALYSSA WYNNE, Sports Intern

DOWNEY – In their match against Millikan High School on Monday, Warren ladies tennis remained relentless and held on strong, even when the score teetered to a depressing 16-2 to Millikan.

Varsity head coach Mary Starksen never lost faith in her girl's and the team refused to admit defeat as well.

"Even though the score was lopsided, the girls played competitively," said Starksen. "The Millikan coach put it very well: the girls never gave up."

With Millikan's coaching staff even agreeing that the Bears were tenacious, it is quite obvious that though this was a staggering defeat, the girl's definitely have talent and passion.

Varsity singles players Rebecca Lopez and Renee Morales each had one win out of three matches, and singles teammate Angelika Sosnowski did not have any wins.

The varsity doubles teams of Ariel Gonzalez and Eran Kalashyan, and Deni Dominguez and Brianna Bordette did not have any wins either.

Varsity doubles partners Helena Park and Hannah Kroeger had two losses when Kroeger was subbed out for teammate Jen Solis.

JARED HEAD

Tirades make the game

C erena Williams' recent tirade at the U.S. Open made me realize how much I love it when an athlete explodes all over the playing field. I love the grainy video of George Brett storming from the dugout to have at umpire Tim McCelland's throat for overturning his home-run in the now famous Pine-Tar Game in 1983.

Speaking of Tennis, am I the only person on this planet who found it ironic to see ESPN asking John McEnroe his opinion on Serena's blow-up? Then again, if anyone were to be deemed an "expert in meltdown" McEnroe would take the cake. You can't be serious if you plan to nominate someone above him.

Dennis Green's classic postgame press conference rant when the Arizona Cardinals blew a 23-3 lead in the 4th quarter to the Chicago Bears led me to believe Green is who I thought he is. Woody Hayes was rather upset when Charlie Bauman intercepted an OSU pass at the 1978 Gator Bowl. With a quick punch, Hayes turned a simple play into a legendary moment. Lest we forget Hayes turned back to the OSU player restraining him and began to pummel him.

But the winner of the Ultimate Meltdown Ever Award would have to be Brave's minor-league manager Phillip Wellman. His ultimate going-out-of-my-head argument on June 1, 2007, coupled with covering home-plate in dirt, throwing two bases (eventually taking them off the field with him) and an immortalized military-style crawl up to the pitcher mound to throw the rosin bag like a grenade at the home plate umpire dwarfs anything Lou Pinella or Bobby Cox could throw our way. So what am I getting at? It's not a glorification of violence or putting moments of sheer flat-tone laced dialogue on a pedestal. It's realizing that these athletes and coaches have so much passion for their sports they're willing to do and risk anything in the name of the game. That's the kind of team I'd want to be a part of.

Vikings off and running

Downey muscles its way to 17-13 win over La Serna in season-opener.

> BY JOSEPH APODACA, SPORTS INTERN

DOWNEY – After a grueling first half, the Downey Varsity Football team pulled through to victory in their season opening game against the La Serna Lancers last Friday at Whittier.

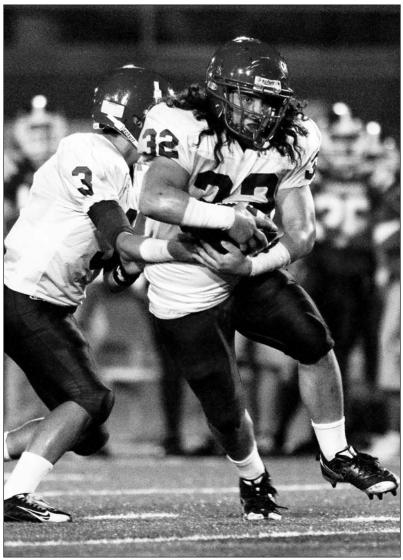

At a game packed with fans, the Vikings took the crowd on a rollercoaster ride through each quarter, starting up 7-0 in the first quarter, down 7-13 in the second, down 10-13 in the third, and finally achieving victory with a finish of 17-13.

Following their touchdown in the first quarter, the Viking's game began to suffer, as La Serna offensive player Andrew Rosales scored a touchdown on the fourth down, putting the Lancers ahead in the game. Right after their touchdown, the Lancers attempted a conversion after a high snap, but was ruled no good. The Vikings then took possession of the ball in the first down, where quarterback Steven Cervantes rushed to the 45-yard line, stopping the clock.

By the game's fourth quarter, Isaac Dan brought the team back to the top after receiving the ball in a pass at La Serna's 20-yard line and rushing towards the goal post, resulting in the game winning touchdown. Elation from the stands, sideline, and from Dan himself was audible throughout the stadium.

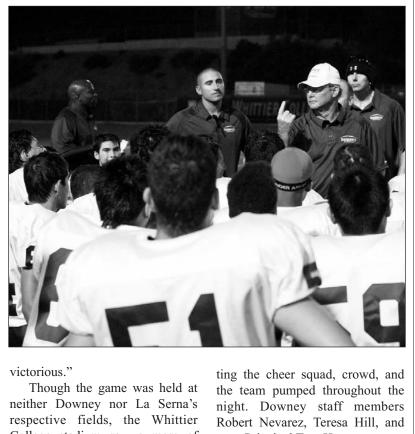

Towards the end of the game, the Vikings endured a scare, when Matt Mazone took a shot to knee from a Lancer, causing what appeared to be a serious injury. The team, cheer squad, and fans in the bleachers all took their feet and waved a peace sign until he was able to be escorted off the field by his teammates and applause soon followed.

Once the score was 17-13 at the bottom of the fourth quarter, the La Serna Lancers relinquished their attempts of a comeback and the Vikings took the victory. Downey was visibly excited to bring home their first win of the season.

Jesse Callier ran for 214 yards and four touchdowns in Warren's 30-21 win over Santa Fe.

Even without Cowins, Warren avenges loss

By Scott Cobos, STAFF WRITER

DOWNEY - It was eerie not seeing Warren receiver Bailey Cowins at wide receiver or safety last Friday, but even without him, last year's loss to Santa Fe was avenged, 30-21.

Cowins had been taken off of the game day roster due to academic struggles late in the week and Bears head coach Chris Benadom had to make some last minute adjustments, one that saw his starting quarterback Sam Bettencourt play safety. At first glance, it would seem that it would disrupt the week's game plan, but not in Benadom's mind.

"I don't want to say ruined," he said. "It happened late in the week. It changed our game plan, but you adapt, you adjust, and hopefully you have things in your bag of tricks. The kids play hard and hopefully you come out with a victory."

Even with Cowins on the sidelines, Santa Fe still wasn't able to stop standout running back Jesse Callier. Callier, who started the season with much promise, improved on last year's total yards rushing from 63 yards to a booming 214 yards on 33 carries with four touchdowns.

In fact, Callier's first touchdown run. Santa Fe made good on their PAT and took a 7-6 lead.

That would be the last time they saw the end zone until the latter part of the third quarter. By then Warren would have already scored twice, both on rushing touchdowns again by Callier, giving the Bears a 21-7 lead.

The ultimate dagger came with under a minute to go when Callier broke out of the backfield and down the sideline for a 42-yard rushing touchdown, his fourth of the game. Warren would miss the PAT, but Santa Fe would still be down by two scores and not have enough time to make any comeback.

Callier continues to stand out in the San Gabriel Valley League, leading all running backs with 395 total yards in only two games. Friday's game was anything but easy for him though, watching the Chiefs commit seven personal fouls for 105 penalty yards.

Warren will be on the road tonight against Whittier at Cal High School for their first road test of the season.

Getting past Schurr is no sure thing

BY JOSEPH APODACA, SPORTS INTERN

DOWNEY - Hosting Schurr tonight in their first home game of the season, Downey football looks to continue their momentum from last week's win.

Last season, the Vikings took home the victory against Schurr, winning 17-13 last fall. The Downey is looking to repeat that win, coming off their season opening win against La Serna High School.

Though the team was victorious in the first game of the season, they have not let it gone to their head. They continue to put valiant effort into every practice and are aware that in every game, there is always something to improve on.

Tonight's game pairs up the Almont league Schurr Spartans against the San Gabriel Valley Division Vikings. Both teams are 1-0 so far this season.

"Schurr is a very tough team," said Downey head coach Will Capps. "They come well prepared and are very skilled players."

The Spartans may come prepared and skilled, but the Vikings don't let that kind of reputation get in the way of their own game. With only one injured player sidelined for this week, the varsity boys are sure to bring only their best game onto the field. The Vikings plan on bringing their game full force on the offense and promise a well thought out defense strategy.

"Everyone is ready for the game," said Capps. "We have all of our best players ready this week so it's sure to be a good game."

The Vikings may be ready to give it for tonight's game, but it doesn't come without a challenge. Schurr is coming off a 20-7 win against Burroughs High School and a previous league ranking of 5-0. The Vikings were previously ranked 3-2 in league.

"It's going to be a big challenge," said Capps. "It's going to be a tough game to win but we're a good team."

Expect large crowds and a lot of Viking pride, as it is the first game this season to be held at the Allen Layne Stadium. Parents, fans, faculty and alumni are all expected to appear at the first home game.

Josh Wright supported overseas troops

BY ERIC PIERCE, CITY EDITOR

DOWNEY – Josh Wright, the Downey resident whose large, giving heart was perhaps eclipsed only by his enthusiastic patriotism and support of U.S. combat troops, has died, family members said in an email.

He was 31.

Wright was hospitalized Sept. 5 after experiencing a "severe brain bleed," Monica, Josh's twin sister, said through e-mail.

Josh's brain swelled and he became paralyzed on his left side. He spent time in the intensive care unit at Kootenai Medical Center in Hayden, Idaho but never recovered.

"My heart breaks for all those Marines that have used him for support and have come to know him as a brother Marine without a uniform," Monica said. "I have had him my whole life and you all only for a few years. You have been cheated and blessed at the same time."

Wright was an avid supporter of U.S. troops, pariticularly the Marines. Although he was disqualified from serving due to a bone marrow transplant in 1983, Josh often used his own money to assemble and ship care packages for troops overseas.

Josh Wright was popular with military platoons stationed around the world. Wright passed away last week after suffering a severe brain bleed.

"The care packages are a lifeline for some troops," Wright, a 1997 graduate of Downey High School, told The Downey Patriot in a 2007 interview. "Sometimes it's the only thing they can count on."

Wright began assembling the care packages after the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq in 2003. He also communicated with troops via letters and e-mail. "Sometimes they write back, sometimes they don't," Wright said. "I'm not offended if they don't. They're busy. Busy trying to stay alive."

According to Monica, Josh's body will be returned to California in a couple of weeks. The family would like his ashes to be spread at Camp Pendleton.

"His heart was with them and that is where he should stay," she said.

Counsel's Corner: Know your rights when dealing with debt collectors

BY STEVE LOPEZ, LAW OFFICES OF STEVE LOPEZ

C topping collector harassment begins with learning what your Drights are under The Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA). Also known as the fair debt act or FDCPA; this federal law was enacted to protect us, the consumer from bill collector's abuse.

The FDCPA clearly defines the rules that bill collectors and even collection attorneys must obey when collecting debts. Many states have their own laws similar to the FDCPA and some of these laws also define collection rules for creditors collecting their own debts. Here is the brief summary of the law.

The FDCPA imposes certain restrictions and requirements upon a debt collector seeking location information about the consumer. Thus, a debt collector communicating with any person other than the consumer for the purpose of acquiring location information about the consumer must identify him or herself, state that he or she is confirming or correcting location information, and, only if expressly requested, identify his or her employer.

The debt collector must not state that the consumer owes any debt; communicate with any person more than once unless requested to do so by such person or unless the collector reasonably believes that the earlier response is erroneous or incomplete and that the person now has correct or complete location information; communicate by postcard; or use any language or symbol on any envelope or in the contents of a communication effected by the mail or telegram that indicates that the collector is in the debt-collection business or that the communication relates to the collection of a debt. Furthermore, a debt collector from collection agencies cannot do any of the following:

•Call you repeatedly or contact vou at an unreasonable time (the law presumes that before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m. is unreasonable).

•Place telephone calls to you without identifying themselves as bill collectors.

employee to stop contacting Simply you. send a letter stating that you want the collection agency to cease all communications with you. All agency employees are then prohibited from contacting you, except to tell you that collection efforts have ended or that the collection agency or original creditor intends to sue you or take advantage of some other legal remedy. And unless you have asked collectors in writing to stop contacting you, they can also contact your spouse, your parents (if you are a minor), and your co-debtors.

If a debt collector continues to violate your rights, document the violation as soon as it happens. Start a log and write down what happened, when it happened, and who witnessed it. Then, try to have another person present (or on the phone) during all future communications with the collector. Then file an official complaint with the Federal Trade Commission. Contact the Federal Trade Commission at 6th and Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20580 or on their website at www.ftc.gov/ftc/complaint.htm.

The best overall advice is not to ignore the debt or try and hide from the debt collector. Usually, the longer you put off resolving the issue, the worse the situation and the consequences will become. Whether you negotiate directly with the collector or obtain a lawyer's assistance, many counselors feel the best strategy almost always is to speak to the collector. Chances are there is room for negotiations and payment plans.

So the next time someone calls to collect a debt, remember you have rights under the FDCPA and hold the bill collector to the letter of the law.

The purpose of this column is to provide general information on the law, which is subject to change. It is not legal advice. Consult a lawyer if you have a specific legal problem.

The clinic will be staffed with nurses from Downey Regional Medical Center and Kaiser Hospital.

Members of the Emergency Preparedness Committee, the Downey Community Emergency Response Team and many community volunteer groups will be assisting with the operations of the event. Downey Fire and Police department staff will be working the event as well.

The L.A. County Department of Public Health is providing the vaccine, the necessary equipment and some staffing for the event.

The event is being held at the Downey Theatre this year. Those interested in receiving a vaccination need to enter the City Hall complex from Brookshire Avenue and turn westbound onto Civic Center Drive. Drivers will then be directed to a parking area near the City Library for 'walk up' vaccination service or to the 'drive-up' area for those adults who are unable to use the walk up vaccination service. Please see the map above.

Emergency preparedness fair

By Mark Sauter,

of the Emergency Preparedness

There will be displays, hand-poses, Second Street will be closed at Brookshire (in front of the Chamber of Commerce offices). All clinic attendees will be directed to exit the Civic Center Complex by driving southbound on Dolan Street to Firestone Boulevard or westbound on Second or Third Street.

Police Station visitors will be directed to park in the parking lot immediately west of City Hall.

The seasonal flu vaccine is recommended for everyone over the age of 6 months. Senior citizens, those with chronic illness, and children are strongly encouraged to be vaccinated.

For further information on the flu vaccination process please review the information at www.flu.gov or www.cdc. gov/flu/

DEPUTY CITY MANAGER, Emergency Preparedness

DOWNEY – The city of Downey will host an emergency preparedness fair on Saturday Sept. 26 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Fire Department, members

Committee, the Downey Community Emergency Response Team, the Red Cross, and the Downey Building Department will be on hand to speak with attendees about actions and preparations all community members can take to improve their readiness for emergencies.

outs and demonstrations.

It is hoped that the flu-shot clinic and the emergency preparedness fair will help community members increase their awareness of the importance of planning for emergencies.

The fair will be setup in the area of the Downey Theatre.
