Council rejects commissioner over porn job

■ Sean Berrios, a product manager at Hustler magazine. was nominated to the Planning Commission by Mayor Pro Tem Catherine Alvarez.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY - Council members on Tuesday voted to deny Mayor Pro Tem Catherine Alvarez's appointment of Sean Berrios to the Planning Commission, citing concerns with his professional connection to the porn industry.

Berrios is currently a product licensing manager with Hustler magazine according to his Linkedin. com profile.

M. Frometa who threw up the red flags on the appointment, though she admitted that she "did not know Mr. Berrios'

"I think from a perspective of being a character counts city, we really want to think about the appointments that we vote on for the various commissions."

"We recently – and when I say recently, within the last two years - found ourselves in a position to have to establish codes of conduct for every commissioner serving in every committee, as well as for all of us on council. I think we agreed collectively the importance of having certain parameters, and

"Again, as I have indicated, I don't know the individual being appointed. What I do know, and By Eric Pierce what has been verified is his employment, and I have some concerns regarding that. I have concerns, there's been so much that has been discussed regarding the restaurant that is coming into town, and I don't approve; I don't believe it is in our city's best interest to appoint someone who is employed by the porn industry to the planning commission for the city of Downey.'

The final vote would ultimately It was Councilwoman Claudia land on a 2-0-1 decision, with Mayor Pacheco and Councilwoman Frometa voting against Barrios's appointment and Councilman Mario Trujillo abstaining, wishing instead to table the decision until Alvarez - who was absent from the meeting – was present.

District 3 is currently without a planning commissioner.

Montoya's previous Planning Commissioner Arturo Montoya recently resigned from his seat after moving out of the district. However, he was appointed Tuesday and will now serve as one of Alvarez's representatives on the Public Works Committee.

certain codes of conduct. Deputy city manager leaving for Moreno Valley

■ Shuffling inside Downey City Hall continues as Aldo Schindler departs to become assistant city manager in Moreno Valley.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY - Downey deputy city manager Aldo Schindler is leaving Downey for a new job later this month, city officials confirmed.

Schindler has spent the last eight years as part of the city's leadership, having been hired in 2014 as director of community development. He was named deputy city manager in 2020.

Schindler's final day with Downey will be April 21.

had previously Schindler worked in the cities of Long Beach, Bell Gardens, and Whittier. He now goes on to the City of Moreno Valley to serve as its assistant city manager.

Schindler was honored by the city with a certificate of recognition at the council meeting on Tuesday.

"Aldo has been with the city for eight years. He has led community development department masterfully during that time period," said City Manager Gilbert Livas. "It's one of the departments that has the most interfacing interaction with the public. It's a regulatory department, so things don't always go as smoothly as people would like them to go, but I will tell you this: in each and every condition, people are treated with respect, dignity in every interaction they encounter with the city.

"...at the end of the day, I think the overall product that Aldo has been able to achieve over these eight years is nothing short of phenomenal."

Aldo Schindler

Schindler said that his thoughts were racing, "but they are all of

"I want to thank the mayor, the city manager, and the council for allowing me to serve the community for these eight years. They've been very supportive on all the things we've pitched them, they've been very supportive of us also moving their vision through the community," said Schindler. "We always hoped that we could move it at a faster pace, and they've also been patient and gracious from that perspective as well."

Livas also thanked planning

"They're the rubber that meets the road," said Schindler. "They're the ones that are picking up the calls on a daily basis, they're the ones that are serving our residents and our businesses on a daily basis, and they're the ones that are moving plans through so that we can help achieve the vision of our mayor, city council, and our city manager."

meeting, After Tuesday's Livas confirmed that Schindler's successor will be current city planner Crystal Landavazo.

6 residents apply for City Council vacancy

■ The applicants are looking to finish the unexpired term of Sean Ashton, who resigned last month.

Editor

DOWNEY - Six residents have filed applications to fill the vacancy on the Downey City Council created by the resignation of Sean Ashton

The six applicants include (in alphabetical order): Anthony Felix Jr., Donald LaPlante, Mario A Guerra, Patrick Owens, Jeremy Shedd and Victoria Valdez.

The City Council will interview the candidates at a public meeting April 27 at 5:30 pm at City Hall. Another meeting is scheduled for May 3 where the council will appoint, swear-in and seat their selection.

The person chosen will finish Ashton's term which runs through the end of this year.

Each applicant was asked to detail their education, community involvement, qualifications, reasons for applying, and priorities if chosen to serve on the City Council.

Anthony Felix Jr.

Felix listed his occupation as a public administrator and said he has lived in Downey for four years. His education history lists a from the University of La Verne.

Felix's community involvement includes speaking to Columbus High School students, helping residents retain their housing, and helping micro-businesses apply for grant funding.

Felix said he is qualified to serve on the City Council because he is an "expert in ethical governance at the local government level with several vears of research on the councilmanager relationship.'

"I have a passion for public service for the purpose of improving the quality of life for my community," Felix wrote in his application. "Being a member of the council will allow me to further my mission [in] positively shaping the future of our community.'

As far as his priorities, Felix listed "affordable housing strategies," "increase in funding" and "further advance the quality of TK-12 grade education."

Felix ran for Congress in 2020 as a Democrat and finished in fourth place.

Donald La Plante

La Plante served on the Downey Unified School District board of education for more than four decades, from 1979 to 2020. He has lived in Downey since 1960.

His education includes a bachelor's degree in journalism and political science from USC, a master's degree in education from Pt. Loma Nazarene University and teaching credentials from Cal retired but previously worked as a La Plante said his extensive history as an elected school board member qualifies him to serve.

"I have served seven times as Board President and have led the Board in three VERY successful searches for a CEO (Superintendent) and would bring consensus building skills to the city Council for this short-term appointment," La Plante wrote.

La Plante said he is interested bachelor's degree in criminal justice in serving on the City Council from Cal State Los Angeles and a because "The City needs someone on the City Council to give District on the Missouri River in Montana, doctorate in public administration with practical experience as an elected official, with no axe to grind nor ambition for long-term service on the City Council. With my experience as an elected official, service as a director of the state and county school board association and the Measure S Citizens Oversight Commission, I can hit the ground running and be an asset to Downey."

> Asked to list his three priorities, La Plante wrote:

- "1.) [Ensure] District 2 has qualified and knowledgeable representative, who has previously been elected to public office by the citizens of the community and area.
- 2. Being willing to work as a team player to select a new City Manager. Selecting a CEO (City Manager) is the most important task a City Council ever has to do.
- 3.) Act professionally and with civility as a member of the City Council.

Mario A. Guerra

Guerra is former two-term Downey City Council member and mayor. He currently serves as a Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army, appointed by President

An insurance broker by trade, Guerra has an economics degree from UCLA. He was ordained as a deacon in 2002 and has volunteered as a chaplain with the Downey Police Department for the last 20 years.

Guerra's community involvement includes work with the Downey YMCA, Gangs Out of State Long Beach. La Plante is now Downey, Downey Regional Medical Center board of directors, West Downey Little League, DJAA, Rancho Los Amigos National Rehabilitation Center, and more.

"My past experience and record Mayor and City Councilman in Downey gives me valuable experience that could assist our city at this time," Guerra wrote. "I do not plan on changing any past decisions nor instigating huge items but I can hopefully bring my local government experience and past good record to our community.'

Guerra said he wants to serve 1908: Hauser Dam, a steel dam 2 residents a voice.

"While I am sure our current council would be able to help them I do think adding a full council would be very helpful in serving them at this time," Guerra wrote. "It literally would give residents an experienced ombudsman to help navigate city services right away, without on-thejob training needed.'

Guerra said "constituent services and responding to residents" would be his top priority, as well as "helping the other council members achieve progress on some of their stated goals." He also would work on veteran's advocacy programs.

Guerra included with his application a letter to the City Council.

"Since I would not be eligible to run again, I feel that my appointment would not be seen as political and could possibly help our community representation from District 2 during this time," Guerra wrote. "I feel I could also help each of you as a cheerleader for our city and council...I do not have any political aspiration nor personal agenda and I look at this as an opportunity to bring a little institutional history back into our city, even for a short period of time.'

Hahn urges residents to get City Council booster shots

By City News Service

COMMERCE - Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn visited the Commerce Senior Center Wednesday to make a personal appeal for residents to get COVID-19 booster shots, noting the nationwide spread of the BA.2 subvariant of the virus that has led to rising case numbers.

"We know the vaccines work, but their effectiveness wanes over time," Hahn said. "If you did the right thing and got vaccinated last year, you protected yourself during the last surge. But we know that your immunity is not as high anymore. You need to look out for yourself, especially if you're a senior like me ... or if you have health challenges.

We are most at risk for getting seriously ill or dying from COVID- 19," she said. "Things are getting more dangerous again. We in L.A. County are keeping our eye on the other cities in this country. The (BA.2) variant is here. ... We are monitoring the situation, but already we're seeing cities like Philadelphia being forced to reinstate their mask mandates as their case counts rise. Everybody needs to get ready and protect themselves by getting boosted."

Second booster shots are now available for all residents aged 50 and over, and for younger residents with underlying health conditions.

Hahn noted that she received her second booster last week, and said her office will be sponsoring mobile vaccination clinics throughout southeastern Los Angeles County in the coming weeks to make the shots more accessible to residents.

Her comments echoed a statement issued Wednesday by California Public Health Director Dr. Tomás Aragón, who also noted that BA.2 is now the dominant strain of COVID-19 in the state.

"Don't wait, get boosted," she said.

"While COVID-19 hospitalization rates are near an all-time low, we are seeing an increase in COVID-19 transmission in some parts of the state,' Aragón said. "This underscores the need for Californians to remain vigilant and protect themselves and their communities by getting vaccinated and boosted. Vaccines continue to offer strong protection against COVID-19, including this variant. This is why the FDA has authorized a second booster dose for those in our most vulnerable categories, including people aged 50 and older. Getting this additional booster is the best way to maintain your protection against COVID-19 and its variants.

Los Angeles County health officials have noted that while daily case numbers have been rising, hospitalizations and deaths are still low.

On Wednesday, state figures showed 256 COVID-positive patients in county hospitals, down from 270 on Tuesday. Of those patients, 35 were being treated in intensive care units, down slightly from 36 a day earlier.

The county reported another 973 infections on Wednesday, raising the cumulative pandemic total to 2,848,030. Another 11 deaths were also eported, lifting the virus-related death toll to 31,830.

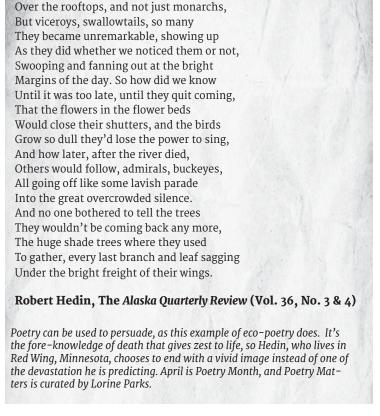

The average daily rate of people testing positive for the virus ticked upward to 1.3% as of Wednesday, up from the roughly 1% rate of the past

According to the county Department of Public Health, the countywide increase in infections is also being reflected at schools, where tests of students and staff had a positivity rate of 0.19% for the week ending April 8. The 822 positive tests recorded that week represented a 42% increase from the prior week, according to the county.

Patrick Owens

An electrician, Owens is the current chair of the Downey Planning Commission, appointed by Ashton. His education history lists stints at Cal State Long Beach and Los Angeles Trade Technical College although it's unclear if he graduated.

In addition to his work on the Planning Commission, Owens' community involvement includes appointments to the Green Task Force and the Public Works Committee.

Owens states he is qualified to serve on the City Council because his professional background "places me on Public Works Contracts, and Labor Representation and Administrative Work daily, similar to City

"As a Lifetime District 2 resident, my current and past appointments have both given me privelege [sic] to represent District 2 residents and the City in positive outcomes," Owens wrote in his application. "I wish

Owens said his priorities would be to "Continue Strong Business Development for District 2 and the City of Downey" and to strengthen the city's work with youth and young adults.

"The Youth and Young Adults are our future, lets give them plans, information, contacts in order to be successful as they are the future.'

Jeremy Shedd

Shedd is a senior advisor in supply management for Southern California Edison. He has lived in Downey since 2016.

Shedd has a bachelor's degree in history and geography from UC Berkeley and is currently studying for a master's in business administration from the USC Marshall School of Business.

Shedd's community involvement is limited in Downey but he has volunteered at the Los Angeles Mission, at tree planting events through SoCal Edison, and he was an active member of the Pasadena Jaycees prior to the pandemic.

Shedd said his business background makes him qualified to serve on the City Council.

"I strive to apply a broad business perspective to my analysis and problem solving, skills essential to succeed as the district 2 councilperson," Shedd said. "I have a constant drive for continuous improvement that is proven in small business and corporate work environments and will translate well to the city council's office."

Shedd said he wants to address neighborhood issues such as homeless encampments, litter, and low-flying aircrafts that are rerouted "away from wealthier neighborhoods and over our homes at all hours of

His priorities include "community safety," "economic development," "financial stability," "improved external partnerships" and "unity despite a diversity of opinions.

China has to choose: Russia or us

By Froma Harrop

President Joe Biden warned China that if it helps Russia in its savagery against Ukraine, the U.S. might apply sanctions to Chinese products. U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Wendy Sherman expanded on that thought: Sanctions imposed on Russia should give President Xi Jinping "a pretty good understanding of what might come his way should he, in fact, support (Vladimir) Putin in any material fashion."

Then there is the American consumer whose closets and toy boxes bulge with stuff from China. This may be the most powerful voice as mass disgust over Putin's war crimes sticks to countries that defend him, much less weaken efforts to squeeze Russia's economy.

Over the weekend, yours truly was rustling through the clothing racks when her heart quickened at the sight of a turquoise blouse selling at a freakishly low price. She can report that the "made in China" label quickly extinguished any shopper's lust.

Bill Browder, the former hedge fund manager in Russia who fought corruption and remains a Putin target, speaks of the high moral cost now attached to Chinese products. "China has been very clear that it's not going to join the rest of the world in challenging or punishing Putin for what he's doing," he said. "I think that China has to be careful."

Browder thinks our consumers may start boycotting Chinese products — even before the U.S. government installs any official sanctions. And it's not just things from China.

The owner of Uniqlo, a Japanese fast fashion chain, originally refused to leave Russia as other retailers had. A consumer backlash quickly forced Uniqlo to reconsider. It has since changed course and pulled out of Russia.

The Chinese telecom giant Huawei is now closing its office in Russia, as have other IT companies before it. Russia was a big and growing market for Huawei, but the risks of doing business there, including the prospect of additional sanctions, caused a turnaround.

Early in February, Xi and Putin joined forces at the Beijing Olympics to declare their alliance and enmity toward nonauthoritarian governments supporting freedom of thought. Even now, China is submerging its people in Russian lies — among them, denials that Russians are viciously attacking civilians in Ukraine. Such reports are hoaxes created by the West, says official

China's softening economy and shutdowns over new COVID-19 outbreaks have also rattled the leadership, raising speculation that China would turn its focus on helping Russia out of its economic isolation. For example, as Europeans try to cut their consumption of Russian oil and natural gas, talk grows that China could replace that market. (Europe now spends $1 billion a day for Russian oil and gas.)

And China could fill in Russia's loss of access to Western financial infrastructure and technology. But China's financial systems can't nearly match the Western ones for size. China is certainly behind Europe in internet services. In any event, if China sells it to Russia, its companies face secondary sanctions or consumer boycotts, witness the decision of Huawei to close

Western private equity companies have been getting cold feet about investments in China, according to Bloomberg. Some of it is Xi's crackdowns on the private sector. Some of it is travel restrictions in China. But a lot of it is political disquiet over China's soulless alliance with the cruel leadership in Behind all these flashing red lights stands the mighty and mightily pissed American consumer. If Browder is right, U.S. shoppers may now already be on the case. To which we might add that even before the Russian aggression, American companies were trying to replace Chinese supply chains snarled by China has to choose: Russia or us. The better bet seems clearer all the

We may be on track for a recession just as the 2024 campaign kicks off

By Steve Rattner

The debate over whether the recent surge in inflation is transitory or permanent has been settled. Now the question is whether the Federal Reserve can tame increasing inflationary turbulence and bring the economy to a soft touchdown.

Mounting evidence suggests a hard landing — in other words, a recession. We need our economic policymakers to move quickly before the likely damage, already in progress, escalates. Just Tuesday, for example, the Labor Department reported that prices rose by 8.5 percent in March over the previous year, up from 7.9 percent in February.

And that's without the full impact of inflationary pressures emanating from the war in Ukraine. Meanwhile, shortages of goods (supply chain problems) continue while escalating wage rates — a good thing in other contexts — are putting more upward pressure on prices.

To respond, the Fed will need to raise interest rates aggressively, quickly and far more forcefully than markets and many economists expect.

Let's go back to Economics 101. Our inflation problem stems from too much demand relative to available supply. Increasing supply is invariably a slow process.

To reduce inflation — and this is the part that's rarely said aloud — we must reduce demand. That means forcing Americans to spend less. Which in turn leads to fewer jobs and slower wage growth, historically to the point where we tip into recession.

That's not desirable, but it is the price we pay for poor economic policies delivered by the White House, by Congress and by the Federal Reserve. Those poor policies include far too much budgetary stimulus as we addressed Covid challenges. The $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan passed in the early days of the Biden administration will go down in history as an extraordinary policy mistake. And the Fed — an esteemed, independent steward of our monetary policy - similarly overestimated the amount of support the economy needed and pumped trillions of dollars into the system.

As a result, we have gotten way behind the curve on inflation; the Fed will have to raise interest rates considerably more than if the problem had not been allowed to arise.

In the past, addressing an inflation problem necessitated the Fed raising interest rates above the inflation rate. Even using the Fed's preferred inflation measure, which is now tracking at 6.4 percent, that would mean rates far higher than the Fed's current prediction of 2.4 to 3.1 percent by the end of Rising interest rates slow the economy in several ways. Higher rates make large purchases bought on credit, like homes and automobiles, less affordable, thereby reining in demand and cooling prices. For their part, businesses would borrow less. And the stock market would also be hit, as investors shifted capital to take advantage of more attractive interest yields on bonds.

Softer home values and a potentially declining stock market would trigger a reverse wealth effect: Feeling less well off, Americans would spend less. All of this would ripple through the economy, ultimately resulting in less economic activity.

Optimists — including the Biden administration — argue that the current supply-demand imbalance can be addressed on the supply side of the equation. That is fantasy. Intel has, happily, announced plans for a new semiconductor plant in Ohio, but that facility won't be operational until 2025. Nor will attacking oligopolistic practices in the meatpacking industry or the escalating cost of hearing aids have any measurable effect on overall

Then there's the other important supply input: labor. Bringing more Americans into the labor force could moderate the pace of wage increases but not nearly quickly enough or on the order of magnitude needed to ease the current worker shortage.

What can policymakers do to avert a recession? At this point, regrettably little. The best approach would be to begin tightening before expectations for future inflation become embedded. Among the most compelling lessons of the double-digit inflation of the late 1970s is that it is far more difficult to unwind an inflation problem than to forestall it.

Those moves to unwind should include fiscal policy. Rather than increasing the near-term budget deficit, the White House should heed the advice of Senator Joe Manchin and couple new social programs — however meritorious - with an equal measure of deficit reduction.

I don't believe that a recession is imminent; there's too much capital sloshing around in the system for that to be likely. The Harvard professor

Sean Berrios responds

Dear Editor:

Civic engagement has always been a problem in every city Fifteen percent of voters go out to vote in any given election. It is a little higher during presidential elections.

Blanca Pacheco and Claudia Frometa's vote against me as planning Commissioner discouraged another person from engaging in civic duties to better our City of Downey. They have prevented me from volunteering due to my employment.

Maintaining compliance with federal regulations has been my priority at work, and enforcing community oversight of city codes was something I was looking forward to bringing to the Planning Commission. This company abides by every state and federal law and contributes to tax reviews for California.

In my opinion, Blanca Pacheco and Claudia Frometa have taken a position against every major progressive Democratic issue presented to the Downey City Council. In my opinion, their voting record speaks volumes and does not support our Democratic Taking a stance against me, a true Democrat, is an effort to stifle the voice of the working class.

Yes, I'm disappointed not to be able to serve the city in which I am fully invested, where my children attend Downey schools, where my wife was a Girl Scout volunteer, and I coached AYSO.

I wonder if the more significant issue here is discrimination since I was unanimously approved last year to serve on the Urban Forest Management Plan Workgroup.

Appreciation for Roybal-Allard

With aging comes the difficult, recurring reminder that health is not something that can simply be taken for granted. This is a reminder I have received far too often in my older years.

Thankfully, though, there are high-quality, affordable health care coverage options for senior citizens like me who need health care the most. As a Medicare Advantage recipient, I feel confident in my health care even after all of the medical challenges I have

In recent years, I have suffered from heart disease, rheumatoid arthritis, and cataracts. All these complications required surgeries and post-treatment care that I never could have afforded without

Jason Furman estimates that Americans still have $2.3 trillion above prepandemic trends stashed in their bank accounts, largely as a result of special government payments and underspending during the pandemic

The much-desired soft landing that would obviate the need for more painful measures is theoretically possible, but history is not on its side.

The former Treasury secretary Lawrence H. Summers has observed that over the past 75 years, every time inflation exceeded 4 percent and unemployment was below 5 percent, a recession ensued within two years.

Bond markets also accurately predicted past slumps. When 10-year interest rates fall below two-year rates, recessions have, on average, occurred

With both conditions having been true this month — at least briefly - that would suggest a downturn just as the 2024 presidential campaign season is getting underway. A potential electoral nightmare for Democrats to

Leave our golf courses alone

Dear Editor:

My family moved to Downey in 1954 when I was six months old. I grew up attending the Downey schools, playing sports, enjoying youth groups, and volunteering to support our fine city.

Some of the fondest memories I have was playing the back nine at Rio Hondo Golf Course with my father two days a week, early in the morning.

I agree with the letter Alexa Davis wrote last week about AB

My husband and his friends play Rio Hondo every Friday morning and have shared stories about other interesting people they have met. People come from all over Southern California to play golf at Rio Hondo. My cousin drives from Torrance once a week to play here as well. This all brings recognition to our city and promotes the revenue that help subsidize other parks and open spaces that everyone in Downey enjoys.

Assembly member Cristina Garcia may have good intentions regarding affordable housing but she is barking up the wrong tree when it comes to using our local golf courses.

Our local golf courses are used for fundraisers and there have been times when it's hard to find a tee time because the courses are being utilized so much.

There has been a recent study that golf minimizes the risk of dementia and heart disease.

Cristina Garcia, do your homework and find other options for affordable housing.

No public money for pride festival

Dear Editor:

I could not believe what I was reading in the Downey Patriot (3/24/22). I learned that the Downey City Council had just allocated $25,000 of our tax money to the LGBTQs so they can have a pride

Then on page 3, I read that Downey is trying to raise the hotel tax to 13%. To do this, the council agreed to hire a public relations firm, costing the taxpayers $123,250 to come to Downey to persuade us that we want to raise hotel taxes to help pay for these Gay Pride events. If the city does not revisit the pride celebration and reverse their decision, I will do everything I can to vote against the hotel tax.

I watched the City Council meeting online and it was explained that the event would be so family oriented and we should be kind and love our neighbor. Sounds like what our churches teach and preach. Maybe we should give each of them $25,000 to celebrate.

Or maybe the City Council hasn't noticed that there are many in Downey having trouble making ends meet. They're working but not making enough to buy gas to go to work, to buy food, to pay rent and pay their bills. Maybe the council should help there with this money.

If people want a pride celebration, fine, but let them foot the bill for it. Use the parks. Let them bring their own foods and drinks and enjoy.

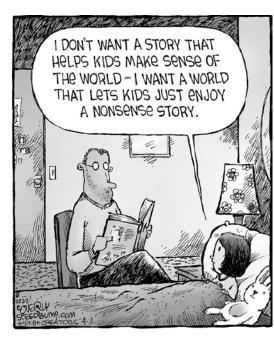

I know the City Council works hard and makes many difficult decisions, but I feel this time they were wrong and it needs to be corrected immediately.

Paging Dr. Frischer...

Ry Dr Alan Frischer

It is often touted as the most healthful beverage at the bar. Is red wine good for you?

The answer is not straightforward. Red wine has been shown to be beneficial in moderate amounts, mostly due to the antioxidant resveratrol. And, let's begin with the obvious: Some of us should not consume any alcohol in any quantity. Alcoholism is a terrible disease, and potential benefits from red wine can be gained from nutrition, exercise, and lifestyle.

A glass of red wine is indeed delightful. It is prepared by crushing and fermenting dark-colored grapes. Some common varieties include Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir, Merlot, Zinfandel, and Malbec. While there is some resveratrol in white wine, there are far higher levels in red wine, because red wine is fermented with the grape skins. (Note that resveratrol supplements have not yet been shown to offer the same benefits.) The average glass of red wine contains 200 milligrams of polyphenols, including resveratrol, compared to merely 30 milligrams in a glass of white Red wine's reputation for being good for heart health came from the "French paradox." A 1980's study explored France's relatively low incidence of coronary heart disease, despite their high consumption of saturated fats (think cheeses and sauces). Wine makers (and drinkers) were delighted when this benefit was unscientifically and incorrectly linked to France's high consumption of red wine.

What are some of the potential health benefits of drinking red wine in moderation? Research suggests that:

· The resveratrol in grapes acts as an antioxidant, preventing cell damage and protecting cells against free

Roast Beef Poor Boy Sandwich $7.49 Hall Of Fame Market & Deli 10846 Downey Ave., Downey, CA 90241 radicals.

· Antioxidants can help to protect against heart disease by lowering blood pressure, keeping blood vessels more flexible, slowing the oxidation of the "bad" cholesterol LDL, and lessening the risk of metabolic diseases.

- Resveratrol can help to control chronic inflammation, which, in addition to causing heart disease, can lead to some cancers (basal cell, colon, prostrate, and ovarian) and autoimmune disorders.
- · Studies have shown that those who drink red wine are less likely to be depressed. Note that, on the other hand, drinking in excess can have the opposite effect!
- · Wine can aid digestion by reducing the risk of infection from Helicobacter pylori, a bacterium that can lead to ulcers. It may also promote the growth of "good" gut bacteria.

· Resveratrol inhibits the formation of betaamyloid protein, which is found in the plaque of the brains of those with Alzheimer's dementia.

· Resveratrol reduces sugar levels in the blood.

Resveratrol leads to the creation of piceatannol, which among other functions has lipid-regulating effects and can control the production of fat cells.

What is moderate drinking? It differs between men and women. For women, that level is likely one fiveounce glass per day. For men it may be as high as two fiveounce glasses per day. This would represent the total amount of any type of alcohol consumed. (Cooking with wine offers the same benefits as drinking it.) I would also suggest skipping alcoholic drinks at least three days per week.

It is quite clear that consuming more than moderate amounts of any form of alcohol has numerous negative health effects, and that many are best off drinking none at all. Let's again make it clear that alcoholism is a tremendously destructive disease. At least one in ten deaths among those aged 20-64 are related to excessive drinking. Drinking too much alcohol is clearly linked to heart problems, stroke, liver disease, pancreatitis, and mental health conditions.

While there are potential benefits to drinking red wine in moderation, it may well be that other aspects of the lifestyles of wine drinkers actually confer the benefits. Keep in mind that these health benefits can be achieved through nutrition, exercise, and lifestyle. The antioxidant resveratrol is found in peanuts, grapes, blueberries, plums, cranberries, many vegetables, and cocoa. (Allow me to repeat that last one: COCOA!)

If you drink, enjoy a nice glass, but please drink responsibly and safely.

Lewis, Rio San Gabriel tie at Carnival of Champions

DOWNEY- Saturday, April 2, was an exciting day for fourth and fifth grade students across Downey Unified as they were able to participate in the Dale Lostetter Carnival of Champions after a two-year hiatus due to the pandemic. This year marked the 56th year that this track and field exhibition was held and, for the first time since 1966, two champions were awarded the first-place trophy.

Being named Co-Champions of this year's Carnival of Champions were the Lewis Elementary School All-Stars and the Rio San Gabriel Elementary Mustangs. Following in second place was Old River Elementary.

"I am proud to say that Downey Unified embodies and abides by Character Counts daily and it was evident during this year's Dale Lostetter Carnival of Champions," expressed Superintendent, Dr. Garcia. "Students congratulated one another by giving high fives and handshakes, whether they were on the winning teams or a competing team. Each upheld a strong sense of character and sportsmanlike conduct throughout the day's competitions."

This annual event brought together approximately 500 boys and girls to compete in the following seven track and field events: baskets in a minute, softball throw for distance, standing long jump, 50-meter dash, 100-meter dash, four-member team 400-meter relay and mixed-coed relay.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE RECALL PETITION

TO THE HONORABLE CATHERINE ALVAREZ: Pursuant to Section 11020, California Elections Code, the undersigned registered qualified voters of the City of Downey, County of Los Angeles, in the State of California, hereby give notice that we are the proponents of a recall petition and that we intend to seek your recall and removal from the office of City Council, District 3, in Downey, California, and to demand election of a successor in that office

The grounds for the recall are as follows:

Downey Residents Supporting the Recall of Catherine Alvarez are seeking your removal from the office of Downey City Council for violating the public trust of District 3 voters during the election by failing to disclose your felony welfare fraud charges. In addition to your welfare fraud conviction, you also have a lifetime ban from Michael's for shoplifting that was not disclosed to voters as well as two warrants for your arrest that were issued for failure to appear in court.

Catherine Alvarez, you did not give voters the opportunity to properly evaluate your candidacy and make an educated decision withholding information. The deception of your crimes and flagrant disregard for transparency deceived voters and took away their ability to make an informed decision about your criminal past and the ability to hold public office in Downey.
This recall will give voters the knowledge to cast a well-informed vote

LA County receives $18M to convert hotels, motels into transitional housing

■ The county is buying up properties and refurbishing them to create interim housing for the homeless.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES - Los Angeles County received more than $18 million from the state to purchase a hotel and two motels and turn them into interim housing for people experiencing Gov. Gavin homelessness. Newsom announced Wednesday.

The county received $5.5 million to purchase a 20unit hotel, which needs to be rehabilitated, and turn it into interim housing with supportive services for homeless families.

The county also received $12.9 million for the Sierra Highway Hotel project, which will convert two adjacent motels in Lancaster into interim housing, providing 39 units and supportive services for people who are homeless.

The governor's office said the motels need rehabilitation, but could welcome residence within eight months of the funding being

The grants are part of Project Homekey, a state program to create permanent housing in apartment buildings and hotels for people who are homeless or at-risk of being homeless.

The state so far has approved a total of 55 projects creating 3,195 housing units for people experiencing homelessness.

Newsom on Wednesday also announced grants to the cities of Berkelev and Arcata, as well as the Housing Authority of Santa Barbara County and the Yurok Indian Housing Authority.

The grants are expected to create a total of 232 units.

"Homekey is proof that we can solve homelessness," Newsom said. "We've swiftly created safer places to live for thousands of unhoused individuals throughout the last two years and today's awards continue that progress -- creating 232 housing units for folks experiencing homelessness across the state and providing them with the supportive services they need."

The governor's office said officials will announce more Project Homekey grants in the coming weeks. Applications are accepted on a rolling basis until funds are exhausted.

The state expanded the program with a $2.75 billion investment last year, with a goal of creating 14,000 long-term housing units. The state began the program with an $846 million investment.

"It's encouraging to see so many great Homekey projects brought forth by our local partners," Department of Housing and Community Development Director Gustavo Velasquez said.

"Our staff continues to work diligently to review many applications and provide assistance to jurisdictions so we homeless count - conducted in can help individuals in need in February - are expected to be every corner of the state. This is released in the summer. the coordination that we need to work our way out of this homelessness crisis.3

According to a 2020 homeless count, the county's homeless population increased by 12.7% over the previous year, while the city of Los Angeles' homeless population jumped by 14.2%.

In January 2019, Los Angeles County had 58,936 people experiencing homelessness, but by January 2020, the number rose to 66,433. The city of Los Angeles counted 36,165 in 2019 and 41,290 in 2020.

The homeless count was canceled last year due to the pandemic.

10:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m. Volunteer Projects Take Place

Join us for the Downey One Day of Service event taking place Saturday, April 23rd!

Downey One Day is a community service day in which volunteers give back to their community by participating in various projects throughout the City. Residents, community organizations, businesses, and churches are encouraged to take ownership of a specific project and give back to their community.

Deadline to submit a volunteer project for consideration is Friday, April 15th. Please email jmontenegro@downeyca.org or call 562-904-7284.

The City of Downey prohibits discrimination of any person in any of its programs and services. For accommodation requests, contact the City's ADA Coordinator at least 48 hours prior to the event/service/program at (562) 299-6619 or ADACoordinator@downeyca.org.TTY 711.
