County eyes $43B budget

■ The spending plan earmarks additional money for new sheriff's recruits and mental health services.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES — A proposed $43 billion Los Angeles County budget proposal for 2023-24 got early support Tuesday from the Board of Supervisors, although the initial review only begins a monthslong public hearing process leading up to final adoption of a spending plan in October.

County CEO Fesia Davenport unveiled her budget proposal Monday, and presented it Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors, which took a procedural vote giving preliminary approval to the document. Public hearings on the budget will begin May 10.

Supervisor Kathryn Barger said the budget proposal "got several things right."

 $\hbox{``Iample ased it includes ongoing}$ funding for sheriff's academies to help keep our communities safe," she said in a statement. "Our county must have a functioning pipeline that recruits and trains quality candidates for the sheriff's department. This has a ripple effect, allowing us to maintain necessary staffing levels for our local sheriff's stations and jails.

The rural communities I represent need more access to services and will welcome the additional support."

Supervisor Holly Mitchell said she hopes there will be good attendance at the upcoming public budget meetings. She said the public has to understand that the county "cannot rely on unanticipated revenue."

Downey Unified expands young women's futures in fields of engineering

■ The Downey school district is partnering with Cal Poly Pomona on an engineering program specifically for girls.

DOWNEY — With only approximately 30 percent of engineering jobs occupied by women, Downey Unified is providing an opportunity for female students to fill this need and be more successful post-graduation by continuing to expand a femalefocused engineering program throughout the district.

In partnership with Cal Poly Pomona's Women in Science and Engineering (WiSE) program, formerly known as their Women in Engineering program, the Femineer program is embedded into Downey Unified's four middle schools and two comprehensive high schools with the goal of providing more opportunities for young women to learn firsthand what a career in engineering and other related fields would encompass.

At the end of March, the annual Femineer Gala was hosted by Downey High School where the work of Downey Unified's Femineers was showcased. This event brought over 300 people in attendance to see what these more than 200 young future female engineers have been diligently focused on this school year.

This gala featured an expansive exhibition where students explained their unique movable designssome resembling the function of vending machines or recreating "I am also encouraged that the scenes from well-known movies Department of Mental Health is such as the ballroom in Disney's the Beast-made with motors, sensors and circuit boards. Similar to previous years, this year's event was rounded out with an impressive panel session made up of female engineers.

> The panel spoke to students about their chosen pathways and experiences in engineering and were also able to answer questions. The panel included professional engineer, Nicky Virdone, who ensuring they are ready for various holds a bachelor's degree in Bioengineering from UCLA and a master's degree in Biomedical Engineering from Duke University, who spoke about her experience as current Project Manager/ Director of Outreach at a National Science Foundation center called CI Compass.

She was joined by three Downey Unified alumni and former Femineer members, Stephanie Vaca, currently in her third year at Cal State Long Beach, majoring in Computer Engineering; Ifunanya Okoroma, a second-year student at UC San Diego majoring in Data Science; and Karla Sarabia, currently in her third year at Cal Poly Pomona, majoring in Aerospace Engineering.

"We are honored and excited to hear from these talented women in engineering, and to have them inspire and influence the trajectories of our Femineers in Downey Unified," stated the district's Board of Education President, Giovanna Perez-Saab. "Hearing their honest and open perspectives on what it takes to excel in the various engineering fields they are working and studying in provides such a valuable perspective for our students. I want to thank our staff for supporting our young female engineers and opportunities in STEAM related fields in their future."

Downey resident pens first play, 'Real Men Have Chichis'

■ Ignacio Gonzalez wrote the play at the urging of Josefina Lopez, the writer behind 'Real Women Have Curves.'

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY — Ignacio Gonzalez is already known around Downey for his work with the Southern California Resource Center for Independent Living. He has dabbled in stand-up comedy.

Now, he can add playwright to his resume.

Gonzalez's new - and firstplay "Real Men Have Chichis" is preparing for a brief workshop stint at the Frida Khalo Theater in Los

The play centers around young

Latino man Lazaro, who is looking to become his own independent, said Gonzalez. "If you might've Have Curves" - after he took her healthy person and break free of known me, I was a whole lot bigger his family's loving suffocation and than I am now. Since my heaviest intoxicating food.

"His family wants to keep him close by, he wants to move away,' said Gonzalez. "They physically want him to be a part of the family and not leave and be more successful then they are, and they entice him also with all the goodtasting food. He wants to try to be healthy, and the rest of the family eats and drinks and is looking to have a good time.

"He's financially, emotionally, health-wise wants to be an independent guy and he's having a hard time sort of wiggling away from his family."

Some of Gonzalez's own personal experiences made it into the play.

"One is trying to get healthy," 10, 12 years ago, I've lost like 140 pounds.

"Part of it, with the family, they do it out of love, they try to feed you and that's how they show you support, by feeding you. Then, you turning food down, its something they might see as a slap in the face, like you're insulting them. You're supposed to take food because in our culture, we don't have much, but we have food; that's what I have to offer you, and if you turn that down, I don't have anything else to offer you other than that, so it's a big insult. Things like that, where I found you're trying to do it in a nice way, be polite and appreciative, and it's difficult."

Gonzalez was encouraged to write the play by writer Josefina Lopez - known for "Real Women script writing class at Casa 0101 in Boyle Heights.

"At one point, she told me, 'Hey, you should make the male version of Real Women Have Curves," said Gonzalez. "This was four years ago, maybe. So, I said, 'Okay, I'll give it a shot.' I did the first 10 pages which she always asked for...and it was good, she liked it. Then, I kind of let it go and it was hard to keep going; I would pick it up, put it back down

'At the end of last year, she said 'Hey, what happened to the play? If you do it now, we'll put it on. I'll look it over, we'll produce it somewhere. I got to work, finished it up, and now here we are."

"Real Men Have Chichis" runs shows over three weekends, Fridays and Saturdays, from May 12 to May

Proposed budget dedicates $288M towards homelessness

In releasing the budget proposal Monday, Davenport warned of an unstable economy and potential future liabilities from child sex assault claims that could range into the billions of dollars, having a significant impact on the county's

The spending plan includes investments in mental health services, homelessness programs and establishment of an Office of Constitutional Policing within the sheriff's department. It also realizes the goal set by voter passage of Measure J in 2020 -- mandating that at least 10% of the county's locally generated "unrestricted revenues" be dedicated to community service programs and alternatives to incarceration.

Davenport said the budget proposal dedicates $288.3 million to such programs, along with nearly $198 million more that will roll over from the current fiscal year, putting the 2023-34 total at about $486 million.

The budget proposal dedicates $692 million toward efforts to combat homelessness. The amount includes more than $60 million for mental health services and 168 positions to provide them; a $100 million pot of money for development and preservation of affordable housing; and $25.5 million for "city-specific programs and services" with a primary goal of moving people out of homeless encampments and into housing, along with supportive services.

The spending proposal includes $6.6 million and the addition of 24 claims, which have expanded non- sworn positions to establish thanks to a state law extending an Office of Constitutional Policing in the sheriff's department, to "oversee and monitor consent recently sued by 300 people who decrees, deputy gang issues, audit claim they were abused as youths and investigations, compliance, by county probation and detention risk management and policy development." In a briefing Monday morning, Davenport said that level of potential liability from lawsuits and damage claims entering a fiscal year is unprecedented. She said that while the exact amount of liability the county might face is unclear, officials are already exploring ways the costs might be covered.

"We have started looking preliminarily at ways how we would address any judgments or settlements," she said. "... Everything has to be on the table. Whether that means reducing funding for some of our departments, reducing the amount of contracts, looking at other ways to finance the debt, debt financing, even looking at our rainy day fund. ... We would try to resolve any liability ... in a way that has the least amount of impact to our safety net services as possible."

She also noted the need for an overhaul of county probation and juvenile facilities, along with possible high costs of conducting seismic retrofits on multiple county facilities. A recent report identified a host of county structures in need of earthquake safety improvements, including the Hall of Administration downtown.

Following the planned initial adoption of the budget by the Board of Supervisors on Tuesday, public hearings will begin May 10, with final budget deliberations beginning in June. Final budget approval is expected in October.

Former mayor Richard Riordan dies at 92

■ Riordan helped rebuild Los Angeles after the Rodney King riots and Northridge earthquake.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES — Funeral services were pending Thursday for Richard Riordan, the venture capitalist who was Los Angeles' mayor from 1993-2001 and faced the challenges of rebuilding the city first from the Rodney King riots, then the Northridge earthquake.

Riordan "passed peacefully this evening at his home in Brentwood, surrounded by his wife Elizabeth, family, friends and precious pet dogs," his family announced Wednesday night. Riordan was 92.

Riordan, the only Republican to hold the nonpartisan position since 1961 when Norris Poulson lost a bid for a third term, was elected in 1993, succeeding Tom Bradley, who held the position for a record

Riordan took office slightly more than a year after the rioting that followed the verdict in the state trial of the Los Angeles Police Department officers accused in the beating of motorist Rodney King, then had another challenge to face in his first year in office -- the 1994 Northridge earthquake.

"Mayor Richard Riordan loved Los Angeles, and devoted so much of himself to bettering our city," Mayor Karen Bass said in a class at the University of Michigan statement. "He always had a place in his heart for the children of LA, and worked to improve how the city served our youth and communities as a passionate member of the Los Angeles Board of Recreation and Park Commissioners.

"Mayor Riordan's legacy includes our city's iconic Central Library, which he saved and rebuilt, and which today carries his name.

"In the wake of the Northridge earthquake, Mayor Riordan set the standard for emergency action. He reassured us and delivered a response with an intensity that still pushes us all to be faster and stronger amidst crisis.

"Though born in New York, Mayor Riordan will be remembered as an LA original."

Riordan was born May 1, 1930, and grew up in New Rochelle, N.Y. He was the youngest of eight children in an Irish Catholic family. He told the Los Angeles Times one of his most vivid Depression childhood memories was seeing unemployed men coming to the family's back door in search of food or work. He attended an allmale Jesuit prep school where both neckties and Latin were mandatory.

He attended Santa Clara University, where he played on the football team. After two years at Santa Clara, he transferred to Princeton. Following his time at Princeton, he served in the Army in Korea and graduated first in his Law School.

Riordan married Eugenia "Genie" Warady at a resort in New York and moved to Southern California. They had five children and he built a law practice, eventually founding Riordan & McKinzie.

He emerged as a political player in the 1980s, lending $300,000 to Tom Bradley's campaign for governor and served on the city's Coliseum and Recreation and Parks commissions. He also helped lead a successful campaign to oust state Supreme Court Justice Rose Elizabeth Bird in 1986.

Two of Riordan's children died during his rise in political circles. Billy, his only son, died in a scuba diving accident off the East Coast days before his 22nd birthday. His daughter Carol died from complications of an eating disorder when she was 19.

Riordan was married four times. He was married to Genie Riordan for 23 years before the marriage was annulled by the Catholic church. He married Jill Noel in 1990, children's activist Nancy Daly in 1998, and Elizabeth Gregory, then head of admissions at Harvard-Westlake School, in 2017.

Riordan is survived by his wife; three children, Mary Elizabeth Riordan, Kathleen Ann Riordan and Patricia Riordan Torrev; three grandchildren, Luca, Jessica and Elizabeth; and a sister, Mary Elizabeth Riordan Hearty.

Red Baysinger lived a long, full life

■ The longtime Downey resident died last week at age 102, leaving behind lessons and memories.

By Alex Dominguez Staff Writer

DOWNEY — Jasper "Red" Baysinger thought "people were like water," meaning they ran downhill to the path of least

Over his 102-year life, he sought to live the exact opposite

Baysinger was born on July 14, 1920 to Jasper Newton and Nettie May Baysinger in the city of Whittier. He would grow up primarily in and around Signal Hill and Long Beach. He would graduate from Poly High School.

As a youngster, Baysinger spent much of his time around automobiles, motorcycles, and auto shops.

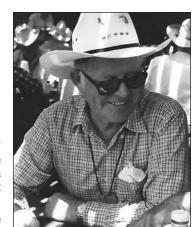

"He had a lifelong love-affair with cars," said Richard Holt, who would assist with Baysinger's eventual life-story publication. "You can pin the entire life story by different cars that he had over the years. Restored cars, built cars, raced cars."

Not just a passion and joy that he would carry with him for the entirety of his life, these tendencies would help lead him into a role working on the B-29 bombers as a US Army Air Force mechanic in the pacific theater during WWII.

After the war, he would live with his parents in Downey. He eventually met his would-be wife, Erma Rose on a blind date. They would marry in Downey Methodist Church in 1948.

One of the prides of his life was the fact that he built his own

"He had told me recently, 'It used to be a big deal to build your own home," said Annie Rojes, a friend of Baysinger in his later years. "I remember asking, 'How did you learn [to build your own home],' and he said, 'Well, there was so many houses being built, it was like booming, I would jump in my car and drive over, see a door being framed, and then go home and do it."

Baysinger and Erma would move into the home in 1950. They would have three children: Karl, Roger, and Marie.

Oldest son Karl says Baysinger was "not happy until he was working for himself."

"He believed very much in being independent," said Karl. "He was raised in that era, the greatest generation, of just 'Your job, your responsibility to take care of yourself.' He didn't like government. He felt that a man's own worth should be how he's

"He could just make friends out of, I don't know how," said Karl. "He was approachable; I think there was something about him that people just said 'This guy is approachable.'

When he turned 90-years-old, Erma gave Baysinger a recorder, with instructions to tell his life story. That recording would one day be the catalyst to his book, "I'd Like to Tell it."

Holt, Baysinger's computer teacher at Downey Adult School, helped him write the book. She says Baysinger was

If the U.S. wants to stop Mexican cartels, stop supplying them with guns

By Jonathan Lowy and Luis Moreno

Jonathan Lowy is the president of Global Action on Gun Violence. Luis Moreno is the former U.S. ambassador to Jamaica and former consul general in Monterrey, Mexico.

According to recent reports, former president Donald Trump is preparing battle plans to attack Mexico if he regains the White House. This is only the latest escalation of saber-rattling in the wake of the recent kidnapping and killing of Americans in Mexico. Former U.S. attorney general William P. Barr, Rep. Dan Crenshaw (Tex.) and Sen. Lindsey O. Graham (S.C.) are among those calling for U.S. military action in Mexico to take on drug cartels.

There is no debating the threat the cartels pose. The fentanyl they push is killing thousands on both sides of the border. In Mexico, they torture and kill journalists to silence them, battle law enforcement and the military, and terrorize civilians. Cartels are largely responsible for as many as 100,000 Mexicans who have been "disappeared" — kidnapped and probably killed — and the 20,000 confirmed killed every year. The violence is spurring migration at the U.S. border. And these transnational criminal organizations are spreading to the United States.

The cartels need to be stopped. But this is not a problem Washington can bomb its way out of. Sending in troops won't help stop the violence and drug trafficking. There is, however, something the United States can do that would: Cut off the gun pipeline that

It's shocking but not surprising that at least one of the guns used in the recent kidnapping was trafficked from the United States. Seventy to 90 percent of Mexican drug cartels' guns are trafficked from U.S. gun stores, supplied by U.S. manufacturers and

Why do the cartels' traffickers risk border crossings to get guns? Because Mexico has strong laws regulating gun sales and only one gun store, which restricts criminals from obtaining weapons there. But in the United States, federally licensed firearms dealers can sell dozens of AR-15s and AK-47s and thousands of rounds of ammunition to purchasers without even asking why a buyer would want such an arsenal. Manufacturers continue to supply these dealers despite their dangerous practices, even though the U.S. Justice Department told them to self-police their distribution chain more than 20 years ago.

Money and guns from the United States drive the deadly violence and drug trafficking in Mexico. The money the cartels use to pay for the guns comes largely from their sale of illegal drugs to buyers in the United States. The cartels and the gun industry profit from this deadly trade, while hundreds of thousands suffer.

What has Congress done about it? In 2004, it failed to renew the 10-year ban on assault weapons, which made it possible to recklessly sell them to traffickers. A study found that for both of the two years that followed, there was a 60 percent spike in homicides in Mexico near the border. And mass shootings in the United States have tripled since the ban lapsed.

In 2005, Congress passed a law to shield bad actors in the gun industry from accountability for the harm they cause. Gun manufacturers Barrett and Browning make and sell to civilians .50-caliber sniper rifles that can pierce armor and shoot down helicopters. U.S. law enforcement focuses on arresting traffickers, who are easily replaced. But it refuses to take on the U.S. gun industry, which is the source of the weapons used by criminals in Mexico and the United States.

If those who call for military intervention in Mexico truly want to stop the cartels, they should support a ban on assault weapons and bulk sales, and greater accountability and enforcement against gun companies that supply cross-border traffickers. The Biden administration should also crack down on dangerous industry

Instead, the "send in the troops" politicians support policies that enable cartels to amass arsenals. After assault-style weapons were used to kill 19 children and two adults in Uvalde, 23 people in El Paso (including eight Mexicans) and 26 in Sutherland Springs all in his home state of Texas — Crenshaw opposed requiring background checks for all gun sales, even though nearly 90 percent of Americans support them.

There is serious policy, and then there's political bluster. When it comes to the fentanyl crisis and violence in Mexico, there has lately been too much of the latter and not enough of the former. Reforming the gun industry to stop the crime gun pipeline is a serious and necessary solution to this ongoing emergency.

Chick-fil-A is taking over

Dear Editor:

Downey will soon have another Chick-fil-A location and it's no wonder.

The demand is high for the franchise's menu and its newest location on Telegraph will likely serve north Downey residents who would otherwise have to trek to the cumbersome Firestone location, which shares the often-circus-like parking lot with The Habit or to the newest location on Firestone next to the 605 Freeway. South Downey residents have a location on Imperial Highway and Lakewood Boulevard.

The saturation process is not complete. There are still plenty of markets, sectors, and audiences to address in the Chick-filaration of Downey. It should not be long before there are popup locations inside supermarkets, hospitals, and banks, catering vehicles arriving at schools, churches, gyms, and seasonal chicken beers on tap at local bars. Personally, I can't wait for the Nike Air-fil-A Ones.

In the meantime, Downey must grapple with the question: What are residents supposed to do on Sundays, until the frozen Chick-fil-A entrees arrive, or until Popeye and the Colonel stepup their game? Downey may have missed-out on Tesla, but we how humble and professional she was. Pretre also conducted the sure got Chick-fil-A in a headlock for now. Here's looking at you orchestra for Callas' recording of Carmen.

Downey should clean up the San Gabriel River

Dear Editor:

As someone who regularly walks, jogs and bikes on the San Gabriel River Bike Trail, there is nothing more anxiety inducing than when the bike path goes underneath the narrow, unlit 5 Freeway and also under the Telegraph Road overpass.

Both sections are filled to the brim with homeless tents and loose dogs. The pavement under the 5 Freeway is full of potholes and bumps, forcing cyclists to slow down dramatically in a dangerous area. They also scatter their junk all across the bike lanes. Not to mention all the stolen motorcycles, mopeds and scooters with fake paper plates or no plates at all.

The Telegraph section of the bike path is just as bad. There Downey is literally active drug dealing (likely fentanyl) going on there. There's swaths of burned trash everywhere. Loose dogs roaming around in the bike lanes.

The problem is that nobody wants to take ownership and responsibility of those sections of the San Gabriel River.

The LA County Sheriff's says it's not their jurisdiction and says to refer to Downey or Santa Fe Springs. Downey PD says it's Santa Fe Spring's jurisdiction. And Whittier Police, who handles police services in Santa Fe Springs, says it's Downey's problem.

This is exactly why they've been able to get away with living there for so long, because neither Downey or Santa Fe Springs wants to take responsibility for that area. While the two cities are fighting over whose problem it is, the drug dealers stay winning and cyclists and joggers who want to enjoy the trail are losing.

I call on Downey officials to please clean up this area and Downey remove the homeless tents and expel the drug dealers. Even if the area is not technically within city limits. It's not like Santa Fe Springs is going to do anything about it anyway.

Remembering Virgina Johnson

In a world where self-obsession and social media dominate our lives, it's easy to forget the value of community and timeless values. But my dear friend, Virginia Johnson, was a shining example of what it means to be committed to these values. As a young man who believed in the power of local government and community, Virginia was always there to turn dreams into a reality in an incredibly compassionate way. She was the knight in shining armor for South Gate, a city that had no idea it needed

Virginia's generation is one that seems like a long time ago. They exuded a sense of community and were proud of it. When I first moved to Hollydale, South Gate, I was struck by the neighborhood's old-fashioned charm. Homes with real neighborly presence, parks, schools, libraries, supermarkets, and restaurants were all within walking distance. Virginia understood the value that these things have on families long before any city planner or community development consultant could ever see it.

Despite having some detractors, Virginia remained steadfast Dear Editor: in her love for family, country, and community. Her commitment to God-fearing ways and timeless values may be viewed as prudish or outdated by some, but she understood something that my generation will never fully grasp. Self-actualization is not something that can be achieved with millions of social media followers or by following the latest trends. Millennials may be the most connected generation in human history, but we have become increasingly disconnected from our communities and values.

Virginia's unwavering commitment to these values reinvigorated my love for South Gate and the promises this country holds for all children and families looking to pursue happiness. As we say goodbye to Virginia, we must acknowledge the gap that she leaves behind. Her willingness to accept young people looking to lay roots in the Southeast Los Angeles area was a testament to her commitment to community and timeless

Thank you, Virginia, for your unwavering commitment to these values that are so desperately needed in today's world. You will be dearly missed, and there will never be a moment in time where I do not think about you. God bless you and thank the Lord for letting me exist in a time where someone like you existed.

Downey's professional symphony

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to conductor Sharon Lavery, the Downey Symphony Orchestra and the Downey Symphonic Society for the beautiful concert of Spanish music performed at the Downey

Very respectfully I would like to suggest a program of Spanish music by French composers which could be called "The French Connection."

I first became enamored of French composers when early in my career I was an audio engineer at Capitol Records in Hollywood. While there, I was exposed to Angel Records repertoire. (The now defunct Angel Records label was the classical arm of Capitol).

I was there when Maria Callas recorded the only complete French opera that she has sung. She was a specialist of Italian opera and even though she spoke French fluently she did not think that she was prepared to sing French opera. I remember how she studied French diction under Georges Pretre for one year before she felt that she was ready to sing Carmen. This to me showed

In my last will I have asked my family that if they do a celebration of life after I kick the bucket, that the Los Angeles Philarmonic, Zubin Metha led version of Bolero be played on that

The program I have in mind would include among others:

- Bolero Ravel
- 2. Toreador Song (Carmen) Bizet
- 3. Iberia Debussy
- 4. España Chabrier
- 5. Symphonie Espagnole Lalo
- 6. Habanera Chabrier
- 7. Rapsodie Espagnole Ravel
- 8. Le Cid Massenet
- 9. Le Pas Espagnol Faure

The addition of a flamenco dancer and a couple of palmeros would make the program perfect.

I hope that conductor Lavery thinks that my suggestion has some merit and creates a program of Spanish music by French composers. We all would enjoy it.

Jorge Montero

Dear Editor:

I attended the Downey Symphony concert last week and came away amazed that our Downey community has its own professional orchestra, much like Los Angeles, Long Beach and other larger cities.

Having an orchestra adds a cultural element to our city. These are professional musicians - not students - who have studied music and are among the best in their fields.

A Downey Symphony concert is always a great excuse to dress up and have a nice evening out, right in our own backyard. Kudos to the orchestra for a spectacular performance.

Street vendors don't belong near schools

If you observed a lone adult male loitering around your child's grammar school, would you be okay with it? No? What about middle school? No? High school? No? Would you find this behavior suspect? Would you be inclined to notify the school officials or even go so far as to call DPD?

Then why is the City of Downey allowing this to happen at virtually all of our schools?

Does the fact that a lone adult male loitering around our schools behind some sort of food cart make it okay? I no longer have school-aged children and I find this trend troubling.

Weren't you taught not to talk to "strangers" and/or not to take candy/food items from them?

Who knows what your child is actually getting from these vendors? Do you trust the hygiene practices? Do you trust the food handling skills? If those "skills" were in the school cafeteria or at a local restaurant, would you be outraged? What sort of grade would they receive? Lack of hot running water is an automatic fail. Does the fact that your child may have to walk out into the street to get around these vendors distressing? I see them regularly blocking sidewalks/encroaching on the public domain.

These vendors do not pay City of Downey taxes or registration fees; they generate no revenue for the city. They do not generally have a City of Downey or Health Department permit. They pay no rent/mortgage or utility bills. They pay no insurance. They are unfair competition for legitimate brick and mortar businesses within our city.

Mostly, they're interacting with your children and you have no idea who they are or what may be in their background that may make them predatory.

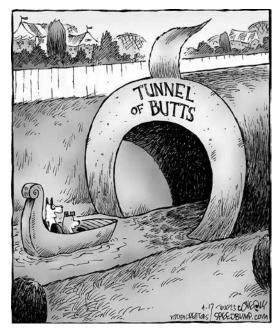

Are you really okay with having these vendors outside our schools and elsewhere in our city?

■ EYE ON OUR SCHOOLS: Downey Unified enters the home stretch.

By Giggy Perez-Saab School Board President

elcome back from Spring Break, Downey Unified! I hope everyone had a relaxing and fun week. Can you believe that we only have less than two months before the end of the school year?

As we look toward June, there are many exciting events including our promotion and graduation ceremonies. I want to share some great opportunities for our families and the community as our district begins to wind down the year.

As a district, we look forward to hosting events highlighting the hard work of our students and staff.

Beginning with our elementary schools, I want to congratulate all our students who competed in our annual Carnival of Champions at the end of March. We had an incredible turn out and our fourth and fifth grade students showed their positive character throughout the entire event.

Congratulations to Lewis Elementary School for placing first in this year's competition. A special shout out to Alameda Elementary's Zoey Finnell for beating the fourth-grade girls' standing long jump record held since 1994. She jumped 7'2", breaking the previous record of 6'10.5". What an incredible accomplishment.

Our annual Robolympics will be held on April 29 at 8:30 a.m. at Warren High School. This is an elementary robotics competition which brings third, fourth and fifth grade students together from across the district to compete. ## Rotary puts the spotlight on very good readers

By Lorine Parks Society Editor

Rotary Club of Downey's ongoing support of childhood literary was highlighted when they hosted some remarkable guests from the Downey Unified School District, for their program, Rotary Recognizes Readers.

Good readers, who have raised their reading level significantly over the past year, were honored. Dr. Roger Brossmer introduced Dr. Wayne Shannon, Assistant Superintendent, Elementary Education, and Wayne enthusiastically introduced the boys and girls named good readers.

The principals of Downey's 13 K-5 schools came up with each student, and each read a special citation for their school's reader. who ranged in age from third grade to fifth.

Each child's story was different, some with challenges at home at overcome, some new to the District and needing to settle in. But every story celebrated the accomplishments of these young people who are enthusiastic and curious and willing to try. "You have skills, and such a love of reading," they said.

"You have gained courage with your hard work and determination."

As each school was called, from Alameda and Carpenter to Ward and Williams, the principals said how excited they were to be here for their students. who work hard and are always good sports. "We are proud of you," their principals said. "You never gave up." One girl wore a pink flowered skirt and blouse, another wore a big red baseball cap.

President Amelia Sanchez anded gift bags to each child, and afterwards I asked Barbara Lamberth what she had chosen to put in them. "A little boxed set of books," said Barbara, some candy, and a pen."

The palm-sized collection of four books for girls called The Never Girls, was about young girls. "real girls in a fairy tale land," and the selection for boys was 3 boxed tales about My Big Fat Zombie Goldfish. They all received Stone Fox, an adventure story about a thrilling dogsled race.

Afterwards I sat down with Old River School fifth grader Kamilah Green and her principal Caryn Jacish. "Kamilah has started a book club in her class," Caryn said. How many have joined? "Twenty," said Kamilah. The group chose the book, and they are reading Loser by Jerry Spinelli, a story about how not fitting in just might lead to an incredible life.

"It's about feeling alone when you're new," said Kamilah. Kamilah is new to Old River School Road School, as she and her mother just moved here from Compton.

Just as books have always done, this one is inspiring her just when she needs it. But Kamilah may be moving again in the fall, to Las Vegas, where her mom has family, so this book may help her again, when she goes there. I wished her luck and happiness wherever she goes, and in return as they left, Kamilah gave me quick

One more good reader, Axel Martinez, received a certificate, and he is enrolled in Downey's Virtual Academy, where he receives online instruction at home.

I talked with Axel, who is ten and in the fifth grade. His mom, his older sisters, and his extended family of aunts and uncles have all helped Axel with his reading skills.

In addition to thirteen K-5 schools, we in Downey also have a Virtual Academy, an online Independent Study school that was started around the time COVID appeared. "We have alternative educational experience for our students," said vice principal Andrea Larios, who accompanied Axel to the Rotary program. "They are able to take advantage of self-paced learning in a familiar setting."

"We currently serve 360 pupils for grades 1 through 12," said Andrea "and that includes an Elementary School Division." The Downey Virtual Academy is housed at the Lynn L. Pace Education Center.

"Is that usual, to have a Virtual Academy, or is Downey special?" I asked Andrea. "It is very unusual, and Downey is unusual," Andrea said, "in offering students a more

Cerritos College works to address shortage of mental health workers

NORWALK — Cerritos College is adding two new cohorts in a dual enrollment Mental Health Worker pathway (MHWP) with the ABC Unified and Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School Districts this

In 2021, the College's Mental Health Worker Program received a $25,000 grant from the California Department of Education in collaboration with Cal-HOSA to launch a behavioral and mental health pathway for high school students, and since then the program has grown and expanded to four districts.

"Dual enrollment provides an amazing opportunity for students in high school to also obtain college units," said Laura Tchulluian, senior manager of dual enrollment at the College. "With this Mental Health Worker Pathway, we are seeing dual enrollment students succeed and receive a Mental Health Worker certificate in as little as 18 months and begin their career preparation."

Since the COVID-19 pandemic, there has been a significant increase in the demand for social and mental health services. According to the program instructor Melanie Martins, there are several conversations across various systems such as homeless services and mental health about how to increase the workforce.

"Many of our systems are greatly understaffed and are eagerly searching for employees," said Martins. "The MHWP creates a pathway that benefits both students and employers. It provides opportunities for students and fills a huge gap in social services."

One of the most valuable aspects of the program, in addition to the classes, is the internship opportunity that students are placed in for their field experience class. According to the program's internship instructor Andrea Sanserino, mental health agencies are always looking for quality staff, and currently have many positions open.

"Often, I hear how hard it is to find candidates. The education that our students get throughout this program, both the theoretical foundation and the practical application in their internships, puts them in a great position to begin to fill some of these gaps," said

"As we continue to increase the number of students in the program, we are increasing the impact on many levels of the mental health workforce and realizing the vision to expand recovery-oriented mental health services."

For more information about the Mental Health Worker Program, please contact Psychology Professor Dr. Jaclyn Ronquillo-Adachi at jronquillo@cerritos.edu

The American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry says nearly 1 in 5 children experience a mental health issue, but only about 20% receive care.

Doctor behind 1-800-GET-THIN gets 7 years in prison

■ Iulian Omidi lied to insurance companies to gain authorization for weight loss surgeries.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES — The former operator of the nowdefunct 1-800-GET- THIN ad campaign was sentenced Monday to seven years behind bars for using fabricated sleep studies to persuade insurance companies to pay out tens of millions of dollars for Lap-Band surgery.

Julian Omidi, 54, of West Hollywood, and one of his companies, Beverly Hills-based Surgery Center Management, were found guilty in December 2021 of multiple wire and mail fraud counts.

Omidi, a former doctor, also was found guilty of two counts of making false statements relating to health care matters and one count each of aggravated identity theft and money laundering. Additionally, Omidi and SCM were found guilty of one count of conspiracy to commit money laundering, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

SCM was sentenced to five years probation. Fines and restitution are to be determined at a hearing in June.

The Lap-Band is a silicone ring that is surgically implanted around the stomach to discourage overeating. The weight-losssurgery business was widely advertised on Southern California freeway billboards, radio and television, attracting people desperate to shed excess pounds.

However, before insurance companies would pre-approve the $100,000 surgery, prospective patients had to show they suffered from certain afflictions, including sleep apnea.

turned "patients into profits" by directing employees to "falsely diagnose patients with a sleep disorder they didn't have."

The defense argued that Omidi was a victim of a sleepstudy con man named Charles Klasky, who "posed as an expert in sleep medicine" and tricked Omidi into allowing him to oversee the sleep-study program.

Klasky pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge and

Prosecutors told the jury that patients were harmed as a result of the scheme when they were subjected to unnecessary medical procedures, and that insurance providers were conned out of millions of dollars after receiving fraudulent bills.

companies authorized payment for many of the proposed Lap-Band surgeries. Prosecutors said GET THIN received at least $38 million for the Lap-Band procedures.

Even if the insurance to submit bills for an average of $15,000 for each sleep study, the jury was told during the 48-day trial in downtown Los Angeles. The insurance payments were deposited into bank accounts associated with the GET THIN entities.

Benefit programs victimized by the billing scam include TriCare -- the health care program for uniformed service members, retirees and their families around the world -- and various private insurance companies.

Omidi's mother, Cindy, was sentenced to probation in 2015 after she was convicted of violating laws designed to prevent money laundering.

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. ## In State of City speech, Bass acknowledges LA is not 'where it needs to be'

■ Los Angeles Mayor Karen Bass said there is increased urgency to take people off the streets and create safer neighborhoods.

By City News Service

LOS ANGELES — Mayor Karen Bass delivered her first State of the City Address Monday, saying, "I am 127 days into my administration, and I cannot declare that the state of our city is where it needs to be."

But at the same time, Bass painted a picture of hope and "increased urgency" as the city grapples with major challenges such as homelessness and public safety and takes aim at what she repeatedly called her vision for a "new L.A."

"I am proud to report that together, we have brought change to the city of Los Angeles," said Bass, standing in the Council Chambers of City Hall before council members and an array of city officials.

"We have increased urgency at City Hall. And we have a clarity of purpose, and have focused our work on the people's most pressing challenges. After vears of frustration, tonight, we can see a clearer path to a new Los Angeles ... where the state of our city will be stronger, healthier, happier build on that. and safer."
